CAPONE IN IRONS, RAGES OVER FATE; THRONGS MEET JAIL TRAIN

Today

A Long Farewell to Capone
Too Much Wood
Who Will It Be?
To Compete, Fight

—By Arthur Brisbane—

WITH 17 other convicts, Al Capone last night left a Chicago jail for a federal prison, there to remain for 10 years, under heavy police escort from jail to train. That, probably, was not necessary. Capone, having lost his fight for liberty, his "mob," like other mobs, forgetful, not grateful, will find another leader in the modern industry of bootlegging.

Capone feels that he is the victim of that which the gangster hates above all things, "the double cross."

He understood that he was to make conviction easy, the government would get part of his earnings on which he had paid no income tax, and he was to be sent to jail only for two years, then resume business and quickly make up his loss.

The judge, who had not been a party to any agreement, sentenced him to ten years instead of two years.

An interesting product of his age, Capone did not produce bootlegging. Prohibition produced bootlegging, and bootlegging produced Capone, as it will produce his successor in power, profit and prison.

Yesterday European exchange rates went up, the dollar went down. Europe is afraid we shall print too many dollars, under the Goldsborough bill, trying to restore 1926 price levels.

But Europe need not worry. This government, by organized finance, will protect itself.

During the war, dollars, worth only 50 cents in Spanish money, were far below par even in Chinese money, but that did not last.

If more money should be printed, how will you distribute it? To irrigate land you must have canals or pipes. Putting it in a lake does no good. Similarly, issuing two or three billions and putting it in banks does no good.

The money could be put directly into the hands of the people, spent for coats, hats, shoes, automobiles, bills at the grocers, if the soldiers got their bonus.

But high finance fears that soldiers, with no financial training, might spend money foolishly.

A big Georgia peach grower said to a Negro, chopping a little wood in the cold: "Why don't you have a big pile of wood in your yard, like that white man?"

"I wouldn't trust no woman with that amount of wood at one time," said the careful brother.

That is how high finance feels about the soldier's bonus.

California primaries, yesterday, an important day for Governor Roosevelt and others. One man, well informed, impartial, says if Governor Roosevelt goes to the convention with one-half the delegates "nothing will stop his nomination."

On the other hand, a number of able citizens who do not accomplish their ends by loud talking or publicity believe that when the dust settles and the lights are out, Owen D. Young will be the nominee.

For purely political reasons President Hoover's friends would prefer to see Governor Roosevelt nominated.

The Southern Pacific railroad, run by Paul Shoup, instead of moaning and groaning about automobile trucks, is in the truck business, and successfully. Freight moved by the Southern Pacific in trucks during 1931, in California, Oregon and Arizona, showed an increase of 438 per cent over hauling done in 1930.

To meet competition, fight.

You can't kill new methods that mean economy and efficiency, but you can utilize them.

American women, eager to be usefully active, will be interested in an idea, successfully developed by Madame Mona Zucca, who spends her winter at Miami and encourages good music by organizing concerts in which all visiting musicians of distinction are invited to participate.

These concerts are given once a week, and, highly successful, cost subscribers only ten dollars a year, for the best music available.

Concerts similar to those of Madame Zucca, herself a distinguished composer, were developed in New York City years ago by Mr. Bagby, in the old Waldorf-Astoria, and are continued in the successor to that venerable hotel.

The jester of old stood behind the king or noble to whom he belonged, made his owner laugh, and choice scraps of food were thrown to him. His descendant, the comedian of today, makes $100,000 a year or more and selects his own food. Talent today makes its possessor independent of the individual employes.

Beniamino Gigli, Italian tenor, who left the Metropolitan Opera House, may rent his superior vocal chords to John Hertz, who runs the Paramount-Publix chain of theaters, and will get $7000 a week.

MACHINE GUN CUTS DOWN RUM BOAT

Speedy Runner Onaway, Boston Craft, and Two Men Seized Off Gloucester

Coast Guard machine gun fire crippled a handsome twin-engined steam yacht, the Onaway, of Boston, off Gloucester today, and a thrilling chase ended with seizure of the boat, its crew of two and 127 cases of liquor.

More than 175 cases of liquor were thrown overboard as the yacht took a zig-zag course at high speed in a desperate effort of the crew to escape while bullets rained about them.

Chief Boatswain's Mate Harold Stone aboard the CG-2394 sighted the trim yacht with its white hull, black stripes and mahogany finish, 10 miles east of Thatcher's Island. He ordered it to halt.

RAIN OF BULLETS

Instead, the 46-foot Onaway changed her course and was off toward the southeast at top speed. In a flash the patrol boat was after the runaway, and Stone had a gunner send a one-pound shot over her bow as a warning.

The warning ignored, the coast guards unloosed their machine gun fire. Steel plunked into the hull, the mast and other parts of the fleeing vessel. The canvas cover over the cargo was ripped to shreds, exposing the stacked cases.

Braving the fire, the rum boat's crew then began tossing cases overboard into the path of the patrol boat which risked damage to its bow in ploughing straight through them.

TAKEN TO BOSTON

The crippled Onaway lost speed swiftly and was soon overtaken, the crew arrested and the boat towed into Gloucester. Later the liquor was taken to Boston on the yacht, and the men on the CG-2394. The men gave their names as Russell and Victor Smith, brothers, of West Newton st., Boston.

The Onaway is one of the finest and fastest vessels seized in New England waters. The seizure also placed Stone tie with Chief Boatswain's Mate Roy Fitzgerald of Gloucester with whom he is having a friendly competition. Both have made four important seizures within a year.

Recipient of "Dear Maria" Letters Dies

New York, May 4 (AP)—The Evening Post said it learned here today of the death of Mrs. Maria Longworth Storer, famous recipient of the "Dear Maria" letters of President Roosevelt, in Paris last Saturday.

Mrs. Storer was an aunt of the late Speaker of the House, Nicholas Longworth. The exchange of letters resulted in removal of her husband, Bellamy Storer, as ambassador to Austria in 1906.

ARMED BANDITS BEAT CRIPPLE

Centering their attack on a cripplen caretaker, three armed bandits today robbed the Malden aerie of Eagles of $111.90 today over the unconscious body of Rudmond Walsh, the clerk.

Walsh, who breathes with the aid of a silver tubs, was alone in the club on Wigglesworth st., Malden, when the three thugs rang the bell.

In the belief that members were seeking admittance, Walsh opened the door, but faced three guns.

Without warning, one of the thugs beat Walsh over the head with the butt of a revolver, then tied him with a towel and a rusty dog chain.

The three took the contents of several slot machine and cleaned out the cash register of the candy and cigarette counter.

When Walsh recovered, the trio had gone. He made his way to the street and notified Orrie J. Hairnes, a letter carrier.

BOY, 4, RESCUED FROM KIDNAPER

An attempt to kidnap William Gorman, 4, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Gorman of Lakeview ave., South Braintree, was frustrated today by a neighbor, Charles Walker.

Walker saw a man at the wheel of a large sedan stop in front of the Gorman home and invite the boy for a ride. The boy had been lifted on to the running board when Walker ran out and snatched him off. The man sped away in the car.

Walker got a glimpse of the license number, but the car to which it was issued, owned by a Lynn man, was reported by police to have been in a garage all morning.

GARNER PILES UP LEAD IN CALIFORNIA

Roosevelt 33,000 Behind the Speaker; Smith Trails; Huge G. O. P. Vote for Hoover

How They Stand

Leaving aside New York and Pennsylvania where the situation is uncertain, the various candidates have acquired delegates as follows:

GOV. ROOSEVELT — Alabama, 24; Arkansas, 18; Georgia, 28; Iowa, 26; Kentucky, 26; Maine, 12; Michigan, 38; Minnesota, 24 (probable contest); Nebraska, 16; New Hampshire, 8; North Dakota, 9; South Dakota, 10; Washington, 16; Wisconsin, 26; Alaska, 6½ Philippines, 6. Total—293.

SPEAKER GARNER—Texas, 46; California, 44. Total—90.

ALFRED E. SMITH—Massachusetts, 36; Rhode Island, 10. Total—46.

GOV. RITCHIE—Maryland, 16.

SENATOR J. Hamilton Lewis, 58.

EX-SENATOR JAMES A. REED—Missouri, 36.

GOV. WM. (ALFALFA BILL) MURRAY—Oklahoma, 22; North Dakota, 1.

San Francisco, May 4 (AP)—A steadily increasing margin of votes piled up for Speaker John N. Garner in California today as his backers claimed victory in the triangular Democratic battle of the state presidential primary.

Taking the lead from the ticket of Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt, by his strength in populous Los Angeles county, the Texan upset general predictions in favor of the New York executive.

With 7722 out of 10,271 precincts reported, Garner's total was 165,852 as against 132,083 for Roosevelt and 118,322 for Alfrde E. Smith, the Democratic presidential candidate of 1928.

CLAIMS FOR GARNER

John B. Elliott, Southern California manager of the Garner movement, asserted the speaker had carried the state by a margin of 40,000 over Roosevelt and 50,000 over Smith.

The Roosevelt forces, however hoped later returns from the rural counties of Northern and Central California would aid them.

BIG VOTE FOR HOOVER

Despite the high pitch of the Democratic battle, these three contenders combined polled fewer votes than did the uncontested slate pledged to President Hoover on the Republican side.

With no contest in sight Republican leaders appealed for a large vote as a gesture of confidence in the President. In 7722 precincts the Hoover ticket polled 512,010.

3 NEAR DEATH BY MONOXIDE

Two babies and the mother of one, kin of Chelsea Naval Hospital attaches, nearly met death in a carbon monoxide filled apartment near the hospital today.

Chelsea and Revere firemen, police and Dr. Clarence Minnema of the hospital worked over the three for an hour to restore them to consciousness.

Two of the hero firemen were John Lawlor and Alfred T. Miller, recently discharged by Mayor Quigley in an economic move.

The others were Lieut. Edward W. Reilly and Firemen Ernest Gavel, Thomas Pilkington and Walter J. Miller.

The victims, Mrs. Mary Barlow, 28; William Barlow, 3 months, and Edward Kalvass, 18 months were found by Leon Barlow in the apartment jointly occupied by Barlow and Edward Kalvass in Fay sq. Barlow and Kalvass are pharmacist mates at the hospital.

Mrs. Kalvass and a week-old infant, Lucille, were unaffected.

Barlow had lighted a hot water heater, he told police, and went into the yard to attend some chores.

When he returned he found his wife on the floor and the children unconscious in their cribs. Kalvass was on duty in the hospital.

Aboard the Al Capone Train En Route to Atlanta, Ga., May 4 (INS)—Al Capone today knows that as a man sows, so shall he reap.

This hoodlum, whose career of terrorism and violence has left an indelible blot of death and bloodshed upon American civilization, said as he sped toward the Atlanta Federal penitentiary and ten years imprisonment for income tax fraud:

"I'm through with every kind of racket."

Often on this same train in other days Capone and his satellites journied to his palatial Palm Island, Fla., home. Nothing that money could buy was not his; attendants fell over themselves to fulfill his every wish.

SNARLS HIS DEFIANCE

Capone said on leaving Chicago:

"I bear no grievance against anybody."

But his attitude belied his words. And his next words contradicted his first ones:

"What the h—l's the use? I'm not going to answer any such questions as whether I think Chicago will be better off without me. The newspapers won't print the truth about me anyway.

"I'll not say anything. That's my lawyers advice, and the Constitution says I don't have to. I've learned not to trust any of you birds. You've never kept your word to me and I don't expect you to do it now."

Someone asked Capone:

"Are you down?"

With an expressive gesture of his hands and arms he replied:

"Do I look it? How would you feel if you had ten years in prison and a year in the county jail staring you in the face?"

SARTORIAL SPLENDOR

With his guards the ace gangster was more amiable. He even discussed with them the quality of his rich appearing dark blue suit, white shirt, dark blue necktie, pearl gray hat, black shoes and black wool stockings. He had nothing to say, however, about the sky

JUDD CALLS PARLEY ON 'HONOR SLAYERS' PARDON

'FREE THEM OR QUIT' EDICT IS REPORTED

Secretary Wilbur Said to Have Ordered the Governor to Act; Honolulu Roused by "Gag"

BULLETIN

Washington, May 4 (AP)—A bill to give President Hoover power to pardon the four defendants in the Hawaiian murder case was introduced today by Senator Logan (D.) of Kentucky.

By JAMES ADAM
International News Service Correspondent

Honolulu, May 4 (INS)—Mounting sentiment in favor of a pardon for the four Americans convicted of the "honor slaying" of Joseph Kahahawai today caused Gov. Lawrence Judd to call a conference with Atty.-Gen. Harry Hewitt, presumably to seek legal advice.

To incessant demands from white civic leaders of Honolulu has been added mainland pressure, including, it was reported, a radiophone call from Secretary of the Interior Wilbur in Washington to Judd.

According to one rumor, Secretary Wilbur told Judd he must pardon Mrs. Grace Hubbard Fortescue, Lieut. Thomas H. Massie and the two enlisted sailors or resign his post.

"When this case formally comes before me—if it ever does—then will be the time for me to comment on it," Judd announced.

"I would like to make it clear that it is still in the hands of the courts, with sentence on the manslaughter charges to be passed on Friday morning."

The growing demand in Honolulu for a pardon will be expressed tonight in an open air mass meeting to be held by the Citizens' Organization for Good Government.

AROUSED BY GAG

Efforts of territorial officials to silence Mrs. Anne Kluegel, militant civic leader and champion of the "honor slayers," by bringing pressure on her husband, a government employe, evoked sharp criticism in the Legislature and caused the Honolulu Advertiser to comment editorially as follows:

"The authorities have again and again bungled matters in dealing with this situation. By announcing to the world that free speech has been suppressed in Hawaii, the men responsible are merely inviting further discredit and deeper animosity towards the territory and its people."

Meanwhile plans for a speedy prosecution of the retrial of the four half-castes accused with Kahahawai of the attack on Mrs. Thalia Massie struck a snag when William P. Pittman, brother of Senator Pittman of Nevada and one of the defense attorneys, advised Asst. Atty.-Gen. Harold Kay that he was unprepared and wished a delay.

"We want to go ahead with the retrial at the earliest possible date, which appears to be May 23," said Kay. "I can see no need for further postponement.

"THEY'RE GUILTY"

"I want to assure the people of the mainland that there will be a 100 per cent prosecution of this case by the territory, as we are firmly convinced that the defendants are guilty as charged."

Governor Judd's sister, Mrs. Sophie Cook, wife of Senator George P. Cook, is a member of the good government organization, which meets tonight, as are several other prominent men and women.

Mrs. Kluegel explained that the mass meeting was aimed to crystallize public opinion in favor of pardons for the four "honor slayers."

Pardon petitions, which are now being circulated by the good government organization and addressed to Gov. Judd, read as follows:

"By virtue of authority vested in you as governor of the Territory of Hawaii by the organic act of Hawaii, we, the undersigned, most earnestly petition you in the name of justice and humanity to grant immediate unconditional pardons to the defendants herein named.

"Our request for this action based upon the past exemplary conduct of these Americans and the tragic circumstances responsible for the position in which they are now placed.

"Furthermore, we believe such executive clemency is for the best interests not only of these individuals concerned, but for the Territory of Hawaii."

ASK NEW TRIAL

Clarence Darrow, chief of the defense counsel, is taking no part in the pardon drive, declaring he and his associates are busy working to try to set aside the jury's verdict by asking a new trial next Friday when sentences of imprisonment of not more than 10 years are scheduled to be imposed.

"Quite naturally I am interested in any movement to obtain pardons for these unfortunate people," said Darrow, "but I am now concerned solely with the legal aspects of the trial

"I am glad to see so much interest aroused among the intelligent people of Honolulu."

Special Public Prosecutor John C. Kelley announced he would not oppose a stay of execution after sentence is imposed, allowing the defendants to remain at liberty on bail pending the outcome of an appeal to the Hawaii Supreme Court.

GIBBONS TO AIR HAWAII TANGLE

New York, May 4 (INS)—"Hawaii, Pearl and Peru," will be the subject of Floyd Gibbons, internationally known "Headline Hunter," when he returns to the air next Saturday night over a nationwide network of the National Broadcasting Company.

Gibbons, who recently returned from the Orient, where he covered the Sino-Japanese conflict for the International News Service, will relate results of an investigation of the Hawaiian situation and discuss the question of whether the islands should be transferred by Congress to control of the Navy Department.

The program will be broadcast over the WEAF-RED network from the New York N. B. C. studios beginning at 11:15 p. m. (daylight time) and continuing for 15 minutes. It will be heard at 7:15 p. m. Pacific Coast standard time.

Hoover May Be Asked to Pardon Honor Slayers

Washington, May 4 (INS)—President Hoover will be requested by Congress to pardon the four defendants in the Honolulu "honor slaying" case if the legislative body cannot do so, Senator McKellar of Tennessee said today.

He predicted the defendants would be pardoned either by Congress, the President or Governor Judd of Hawaii.

Meanwhile, the list of names on a petition in the House urging Governor Judd to pardon the defendants swelled to 125. The petition is sponsored by Representative Thatcher (R.) of Kentucky, who has already cabled Governor Judd the demand for a pardon is overwhelming.

LAMPY'S BLUFF IS CALLED

Two Harvard youths visited the Boston Evening American offices early today and identified themselves as the intermediaries of those who claimed they have stolen the Sacred Ibis of the Harvard Lampoon.

The hallowed bird of the Lampoon was reported to have been stolen during the outbreak a few weeks ago when the Lampy cohorts staged their ballyhoo for the parody issue of the Harvard Alumni Bulletin. Report of the theft was followed by denial by Lampy members, who asserted that a stuffed gull had been taken by mistake.

This apparently ended the matter until today, when the mysterious youths appeared. They declined to give their names, but the leader of the two represented himself as the head go-between for the Ibis Snatchers and officials of the Lampoon.

They declared that the person or group who had taken the Ibis had become disgusted with the Lampoon attitude in the matter and had decided to present to the world the photographic proof that the sacred Ibis was in their possession. The pair also had been designated to take up the matterr of ransom.

The picture shows Benny, the Ibis, "Tut," the secred alligator, and Arthur, the gull, in conference. The go-betweens declare that all were taken from the sacred precincts of the Lampoon and that the photograph is being published as genuine evidence that the trio of Lampoon possessions are in the hands of outsiders.

As representatives of the thieves they offered the picture showing the trio were in custody and apparently healthy. They declined to comment on the diet as revealed in the picture.

The next move seems to be up to Lampoon representatives.

Only 43 Million Cut in Economy Bill

ROAD DEFENDS PURCHASE OF B. & W. LAND

Stockholders Have Only Received $300 for Each $1000 That They Put Into It

The Boston, Worcester & New York Street Railway Co. today took a hand in the argument waging between Gov. Ely and Lieut.-Gov. Youngman over the state's proposed purchase of the trolley franchise for $563,000.

"Unless there has been fraud or collusion of some kind, there is no justification for the extraordinary action of the Lieutenant-Governor," said Myron E. Pierce, counsel for the company, referring to Youngman's attack on the purchase plan.

Pierce issued a long statement, listing 30 arguments in defense of the purchase, chief among which was that the company had spent nearly $1,000,000 making the broad road which now becomes the route of the new Boston-Worcester motor turnpike.

"This money," said Pierce, "came out of the original bondholders, who in 1927 foreclosed and reorganized. For each $1000 of their investment they received only $300 in new bonds, and the pending agreement with the State gibes them less than $150 on the $1000 invested.

"The right of way to be abandoned is the security for $758,000 worth of bonds which were approved by the Department of Public Utilities. It would be a gross breach of faith to try to take away the security for these bonds without compensation."

Pierce stated that the Commonwealth, in paying $563,000 for the franchise and trolley reservation, for use in the new motor highway, was saving considerably more than that amount.

He said it was not true that the franchise was worthless, because the company had planned to use the reservation for a new type of light, safe and economical cars on pneumatic tires with steel flanges.

ROGERS WOULD BAR UNFIT

Education must have a certain amount of "dog training," habitual repetitions, so that it becomes second nature, Prof. Robert E. Rogers of Technology told the student body today at the Berekely Preparatory school.

Prof. Rogers declared that colleges should discontinue the practice of breaking down the barriers to those persons who are not fit for higher education.

"It will not be so easy in the future for a boy or a girl to enter college," he said. "There will be more sieves to pass through for the student who wishes to go on to higher heights."

"I happen to be old-fashioned enough to believe in the old way of educating the old curriculum of the fundamentals has turned out some good men. We might as well trust it. There has been too much emphasis on education as pleasure instead of interest, discipline, and perseverance."

STRIKE ON CITY HALL IN NEWTON

The 30 bricklayers, marble setters and cement finishers employed on Newton's $1,000,000 city hall walked out on strike today in protest against a wage reduction of 20 cents an hour.

The 30 workers of the masonry trades were notified yesterday by their employers, the C. S. Cunningham & Sons Construction Co., that a reduction in wages would be made from $1.80 to $1.60 an hour, the "Boston scale."

This scale was agreed upon Monday by independent contractors in Boston, and the Employers' Association is considering a similar reduction. The Cunningham company has membership with the independents.

Textile Head Held in Larceny Charge

Westfield, May 4 (AP—Fred C. Williams, Sr., of West Hartford, Ct., until recently a director and manager of the Westfield Textile Manufacturing Company, whose hearing on a charge of larceny of $10,000 of the company funds, was set for today, pleaded not guilty to two new counts which were virtually amendments to the original complaints, and the hearing was continued to May 13. He was released in the original bonds of $20,000.

Put On Bench

Frank J. Donahue, chairman of the Democratic State committee and Democratic national committeeman, named today to the superior court bench by Governor Ely.

MAN IS HELD AS POLYGAMIST

Fall River, May 4 (AP)—Charles A. Hayden, alias Ernest J. Hayden, of Assonet was held in $1800 bonds for the grand jury today as a polygamist. He was charged with polygamy and with making a false statement while securing a marriage license.

John Hallahan of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children said Hayden had told him he had married a woman at Fairfield, Maine, in 1920. Hallahan said Hayden did not tell him the woman's name and simply said he did not know what became of her.

Hallahan also said Hayden married Mrs. Catherine Farrley of Weymouth and left her because he could not get along with her children. The agent also claimed Hayden had introduced another woman as his wife in Pittsburgh Relief station in 1929 and that recently he married Minnie Eddy of Assonet.

2 SEAMEN SUE IN FISH ROW

According to testimony in admiralty court today, skippers of the fishing schooners Emma Marie and Magellan exchanged unelegant greetings when the two ships met in a quest for the same swordfish.

A collision resulted and James M. Doyle, Jerome Fraser and others of the Emma Marie seek damages of $20,000 each for injuries.

Doyle seeks the damages from the United Fisheries Co., owners of the Magellan and Fraser is suing Frank W. Wilkinson of Brooklyn, part owner of the Emma Marie.

Both men were thrown into the water, Doyle claiming a heart ailment as a result and Fraser charging "conscious suffering of body and mind."

They charged that the collision could have been averted but for the intense rivalry of the skippers.

CUT DEMANDED IN LIGHT RATES

Reduction in the rates charged for electricity by the Malden Electric Company, with abolishment of the 50-cent service charge, was demanded today at a preliminary hearing before the public utility commission by officials and citizens of Medford, Malden and Everett.

Speakers claimed the 1931 dividend of 27 per cent paid by the company was excessive, particularly in times like the present when other commodities and labor showed big reducitons.

Mayor O'Neill of Everett told the commission that unless something in the way of relief is given, his city, together with Malden and Medford, will pool an appropriation sufficient to bring about an investigation.

At the request of City Solicitor Lewis H. Peters of Medford, the hearings were set to start on May 25.

KIDNAP ENVOYS OFF FOR FINAL RENDEZVOUS

Lindbergh Reported Aboard Marcon, Heading Out to Sea From Norfolk

By SEYMOUR BERKSON

Norfolk, Va., May 4 (US)—Moving in and out again of the naval base here with Col. Lindbergh himself believed to be aboard, the yacht Marcon maneuvered early today for what is expected to be the Norfolk negotiators' final rendezvous for return of the kidnaped Lindbergh baby.

The yacht which left amid the utmost secrecy yesterday afternoon, returned to the naval base shortly after 10:30 p. m., and then turned out toward the open ocean once more.

BRUCE ABOARD

Lieut. George H. Richard, navy flier who has accompanied John H. Curtis, Norfolk negotiator on a number of secret missions, hurried to his home here during the boat's pause, to visit his wife who has been ill, and then rushed off telling her not to expect him back until today.

In addition to Richard, Curtis, and the reported presence of Colonel Lindbergh, others on the yacht included Edwin B. Bruce, retired banker and friend of Curtis, Captain F. H. Lachmann, skipper of the yacht, and two sailors.

The utmost secrecy surrounded the departure of the Marcon, marines guarded all entrances to every part of the naval base commanding a view of the little inlet where the yacht had been anchored.

SILENT ON LINDY

Admiral William B. MacDougall, commandant of the naval base, when asked about the departure of the Marcon and the report Col. Lindbergh was on board with John H. Curtis and Edwin B. Bruce, two of the Norfolk negotiators, replied:

"All I can say at this time about Col. Lindbergh and the Marcon is 'no answer'."

The slim white yacht, however, was observed gracefully plowing its way past Cape Henry toward the open ocean.

Meanwhile, the final stage of the negotiations which is expected to bring about the return of the baby was said to involve an intricate ransom deal the nature of which remained a secret.

One report has it that the supposed kidnapers, dealing with the Norfolk negotiators, are the same ones who received the $50,000 in ransom already paid by Colonel Lindbergh.

NEW DEAL FOR GOLD

According to this report, the kidnapers have already shown the negotiators $15,000 in bills bearing the same numbers of the Lindbergh bills made public by the Treasury Department.

The new deal for the return of the baby is said to involve an exchange of the bills for gold in a form not traceable.

Colonel Lindbergh is believed to have been picked up by the Marcon somewhere along the coast last Friday. He has not been seen at his Hopewell, N. J., home since then.

Planes Land Experts to Study Rays on Mt. McKinley

Fairbanks, Alaska, May 4 (AP)—Man's assault on the upper slopes of Mount McKinley, the continent's highest peak, to study cosmic rays in the interest of science, has been aided through the use of two airplanes.

With the planes, Pilots Joe Crosson and Jerry Jones reported on flying back here, three members of the Allen-Carpe expedition were safely landed on the icy surface of Muldrow glacier, at an altitude of between 6000 and 6500 feet.

In addition, 100 pounds of food supplies were dropped to Allen Carpe and Theodore Koven, two of the scientists who have climbed successfully to a height of more than 11,000 feet. The mountain is 20,300 feet high.

Japanese Deer Gives Cowboy the Laugh

Shifnal, Shropshire, Eng., May 4 (AP)—A New Mexico cowboy, Charlie Mix, is having his troubles capturing a Japanese deer which is on the loose in the neighborhood. The deer escaped from a herd two years ago and has eluded capture.

Mix got his lariat over the deer's horns once, but the hind, a smart critter, slipped the noose and galloped away.

Miriam Hopkins, Screen Star, to Adopt Foundling

Chicago, May 4 (AP)—Miriam Hopkins, blond star of the screen and stage, is going to adopt a baby boy.

Miriam Hopkins

She selected the child yesterday in an Evanston nursery for infant waifs, and looked to County Judge Jarecki to approve of the adoption.

Miss Hopkins arrived here from Hollywood a few days ago. She and her playwright husband, Austin Parker, separated a year ago, at that time they said neither intended to sue for divorce, but had merely decided to live apart.

Opera Pleasing to Eye and Ear Aim of Stokowski

New York, May 4—If Leopold Stokowski, conductor of the Philadelphia Symphony Orchestra, had his way, every opera would have two prima donnas, one pleasing to the ear, another to the eye.

Leopold Stokowski

He said he was experimenting with "synthetic opera" with the voices of stars synchronized with pictures of handsome actors.

"Opera today," he said, "often is a sore trial to the eye. Take Tannhauser, for example. Venus, most beautiful woman in the world, is using her charms to tempt Tannhauser. But unfortunately, the woman with the beautiful voice has eaten too much spaghetti or sauerbratten.

"Electricity will change her. We can synchronize voice and action and obtain the perfect illusion."

Helen Kane

She asked for $250,000 damages and a permanent injunction restraining the Paramount Publix Corporation, Max Fleischer, the cartoonist who designed "Mickey Mouse" as well as "Betty Boop," and the Fleischer Studios from the production and display of their "Boop" series.

Furthermore, she declares, full-length portraits, slightly caricature but easily recognizable as Helen Kane, have been distributed with the motion pictures of "Betty Boop."

SCHOONER RAMS COAST GUARD

Gloucester, May 4—The first accident to a coast guard craft since Base 7 was established here several years ago occurred today when the gill-netter Virginia & Joan rammed CG-156 near Ten Pound Island in the harbor here.

The crew of the coast guard boat, which was returning to the base from rum chasing off the coast, were severely shaken up and the craft was badly damaged.

The fishing boat was on the wrong side of the obstruction buoy, according to coast guards, and the CG-156 had to take the smash into her bow or go ashore on the island. She took it.

The fishing boat was repaired at the base and then went to sea. Emerson Cudious was in command of the patrol boat.

Amendment to Oath Bill Is Disallowed

Dublin, Irish Free State, May 4—An amendment to the government bill abolishing the oath of allegiance to the British crown, which would require Irish deputies to promise loyalty to the crown, was disallowed by the Speaker of the Dail last night.

BOOK REVEALS BURNING ARDOR FOR AVIATRIX

(Copyright, 1932, Universal Service, Inc.)

Miami, Fla., May 4 (US)—The personal diary of Capt. W. N. Lancaster, aviator charged with the murder of Haden Clarke, is in the hands of authorities here, it was learned exclusively by Universal Service.

This diary, expected to play an important part in the case, was written by Lancaster during his trip to the West Coast just before he returned to Miami, a day before Clarke was killed.

REVEALS GREAT LOVE

It reveals a passionate love for Mrs. J. M. Keith-Miller, famous aviatrix, with whom Clarke is also said to have been infatuated.

The flyleaf of the diary explains that it was "the personal property of Capt. W. N. Lancaster," and adds that if anything happened to him, it was to be turned over to Mrs. Keith-Miller.

The flyleaf also contains a key to names, showing "Chubbie" he frequently mentions is Mrs. Keith-Miller and "Russell" is J. F. Russell, now under indictment in Key West on a charge of smuggling aliens.

Following are excerpts from the diary:

LONGED FOR NEWS

"March 30, Nogales, Ariz.—No news from Chubbie. The little devil! I should not think of her so much. She doesn't deserve it. Hell!

"April 1, Los Angeles—Would give anything for news of her.

"April 2, Los Angeles—Russell shows me two of Mrs. Russell's letters. One says: 'Chubbie and Clarke came around tonight. I really think now that Clarke has gained Chubbie's affections and Bill lost them.' The other letter said: 'Was around at Chubbie's tonight. She and Clarke got all ginned up together. Don't tell Bill (Lancaster) but I believe she is well satisfied.' The last two words were underlined. I was going to leave Russell here but he told me he might get some money for return trip, so decided not to. Mental agony!!! Hell!!!

SENT HER MONEY

"April 3, Los Angeles—Wired Chubbie every cent I could raise. It leaves me flat broke, but God may provide. How to get out of the hotel is a problem.' Why no news from Chubbie? 4 a. m. I have been trying to telephone

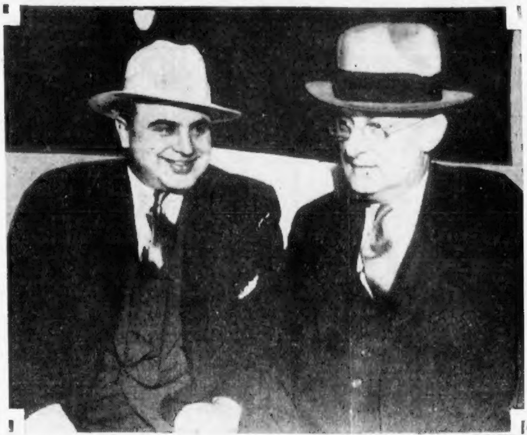
$3,000,000 Woodpile Is Still Blazing

Port Alfred, Que., May 4 (AP)—Six hundred thousand gallons of water a minute were being pumped today into the flames which, since last Friday, have been steadily devouring a pile of 250,000 cords of pulpwood.

The fighting force of 1000 men has carted away a quantity of the wood. They also edected asbestos barriers. The Consolidated Paper Corp values the pile at $3,000,000.

Capone Goes to 'Big House' Smiling Grimly at Visions of That Regal Palace He Leaves Behind



ALPHONSE CAPONE MARSHAL LAUBENHEIMER

Here's "Scarface Al" Capone's latest photographed—that is the last one he posed for just before he was "mugged and numbered" with other new convicts at Atlanta federal prison. This photo, showing "Public Enemy No. 1" in a jovial mood, shackled to U. S. Marshal Laubenheimer, was made aboard the train speeding Capone to his 11-year term of imprisonment "at the end of the road." (International News Telephoto.)

"TAKEN FOR A RIDE"

HERE'S THE CONTRAST, GAY MIAMI AND GRIM ATLANTA

ELSMORE'S PAL GETS 12 YEARS

Despite his impassioned plea for leniency, Robert Ducayne, pal of Harry Elsemore, dope-pedling bandit who was slain with his own revolver last March, was sentenced in Suffolk Superior Court today to 12 to 15 years in State prison.

Ducayne was found guilty yesterday on two charges of armed robbery in store holdups.

When Judge Sisk asked Ducayne if he had anything to say, the serious-faced bandit declared:

"Your Honor, I feel I have had a fair trial and I am satisfied with the conditions during the trial. I hope the court will be lenient in the sentence that must be imposed, so that on some future date I may return to the sunshine and fresh air."

Ducayne was captured after Elsmore was shot.

With them was Mrs. Irene Fore, divorced wife of Clyde Fore of Garrison rd., Brookline, who left a home of wealth to run with bandits. Joseph Hopping, at the time, suffered wounds from which he died two days later.

Capone, at Road's End, Not to Let Son, 14, Know

He "can't beat the rap."

With all good behavior allowances it will be seven and a half years before he can see "Jiggs" again.

It's going to be a long seven and a half years for Scarface.

It's going to be an eternity for "Jiggs."

'JIGGS' LIVES IN PRISON OF CARE

"Jiggs" is Alphonse Capone, Jr. He's 14 and a boy who lives in a veritable prison of care. He can't play in vacant lots, like other 14-year-olds. He can't play games in the streets after dark on a balmy summer night.

He's the son of the gangland king of America, and he's guarded more closely than the son of a Morgan, or even the nation's President.

"Jiggs" doesn't know the things that are said of his father. He's never seen "Scarface Al" in jail. "Jiggs" doesn't have free access to the papers; he reads only censored columns of the press.

EXISTS IN LONELY SPLENDOR

"Jiggs" doesn't go to public schools. He hasn't been in Chicago in seven years. He lives in lonely splendor on the Palm Island estate of the King of Crime, just off Miami; lives on the protected side of the island bridge, with Miami police checking the numbers of all automobiles that leave or enter, and members of the Capone guard checking again on the estate of that bridge. One of the few "boy thrills" of "Jiggs'" life came two years ago when he visited Jack Sharkey in the latter's training camp near Miami, when he was training there for his battle with Phil Scott, the English falling heavyweight. "Jiggs" shook hands with Sharkey just like any other boy would—one of the big moments in his prison-like existence.

Just once in the past two years has "Jiggs" had a party. That was early in May, 1930, while Capone was still out on bail before his trial. Fifty "kids" were invited, but they each had to bring a written consent from their parents before they could eat the chicken sandwiches, the pie, the ice-cream—before they could swim in the $100,000 pool. They all knew the rules that no one ever talked of how "Jiggs'" father was always tangled up with the law.

Capone has stayed in the racket these last four years or so only because he'd built his Frankenstein and could not lose it. And now, he knows that his road has reached the end.

HOOVER SILENT ABOUT MORGAN

Washington, May 4 (INS)—The White House remained silent today regarding the meeting last night of President Hoover and J. Pierpont Morgan, New York financier mentioned prominently in the Senate's investigation of Wall St.

They met at the table of Secretary of the Navy Adams, and persons close to them denied their was any significance in their meeting.

2-CENT CHECK TAX APPROVED

Washington, May 4 (AP)—The Senate finance committee today made all checks subject to the two cents tax, eliminating the $5 exemption allowed in its original proposal.

A flat rate of four cents a share on bond sales was approved.

The committee struck out of the House bill the tax of ¼ of 1 per cent on loans of stocks which was aimed at curbing short selling.

SCIENCE TEARS DEATH'S HAND FROM MONOXIDE VICTIMS

SNATCHED FROM DEATH'S ARMS

Fireman William J. Miller and Lieut. Edward W. Reilly of the Chelsea department working the inhalator on the Barlow child. After an hour's heroic work the firemen, with Dr. Clarence Minnema of the Chelsea Naval Hospital, the baby, his mother, Mrs. Mary Barlow, and 18-month-old Edward Kalvass were saved.

HAPPY TO BE ALIVE

Mrs. Mary Barlow and her son after they had been resuscitated by the tireless efforts of the firemen and Dr. Minnema. Overcome when a gas heater vitiated the air in the apartment occupied jointly by the two families, they were near death from carbon monoxide when the rescuers came.

'DEAD' BROTHER TELLS OF CLAIM

James Welch, 72, of Holten st., Brighton, who appeared and laid claim to a share of the estate of his sister, Miss Agnes Welsh of Lowell, after the property had been distributed to others in the belief that he was dad, told his story in probate court at East Cambridge today.

"I have been living in Boston all the time," he said. "I've lived out there in Brighton for 15 years.

"I hadn't seen my sister, though, since she left Nova Scotia 50 years ago. Later I came to Boston.

"I did not know she died in 1929 until one day I met an old friend on the street and he told me. He also told me she left some money. I never knew she had any."

Ernest Flory of Lowell, who as administrator distributed the $17,000 estate to 20 nephews and nieces of Miss Welsh, was cross-examined at great length as to why he believed the brother dead.

Flory said he queried relatives, but admitted that all those he questioned were interested parties who would probably receive some of the money.

YANKEE GENIUS PULLING N. E. THROUGH

Yankee determination, courage, initiative and resourcefulness of New England manufacturers in developing new business in the face of present conditions were described today by speakers at the New England Council's ned products conference.

Two hundred New England business executives, meeting in the Copley-Plaza Hotel, told how they had used research to develop new products and to discover new uses for old products.

This, they claimed, had much to do with New England having come through the depression relatively better off than some other sections.

Simultaneously with the speechmaking, 76 New England firms exhibited new products ranging from fruit drinks to bathroom fixtures.

NEED NEW THOUGHT

"The world is far behind the research engineer," said James W. Hok of New Haven, chairman of the industrial committee of the council.

"What is needed in this mechanized world is a new and vigorous school of thought that will teach us how to live with lower costs and greater production, a leadership that will show us how to distribute the things that are produced so quickly and so equitably that the standard of living of all the people will be increased."

RESEARCH MUST GO ON.

"New and better products are a direct factor in relieving unemployment, since they increase the intensity of consumer wants and thus stimulate spending," Prof. Robert E. Elder of Technology told the conference.

"Past experience shows that new products which catch the popular fancy will sell regardless of general business conditions," said Winthrop L. Carter, Nashua, N. H., manufacturer.

Durant Ladd of Cambridge discussed the importance of a marketing study before the introduction of a new product.

'GODLESS' HIT IN REICH DECREE

Berlin, May 4 (AP)—President von Hindenburg issued a decree today making it obligatory for political associations organized on semi-military lines to submit their by-laws for examination by the minister of the interior, who is empowered to order alterations.

The decree was signed also by Chancellor Bruening and Wilhelm Groener, minister of defense. Its issuance followed dissolution of the National Socialist storm troops and was intended to check the activities of such organizations as the Steel Helmets and the Reichbanner should they show signs of becoming other than purely political groups.

By another decree, the so-called "Godless" organizations of Communists were dissolved. The government explained that this order was intended to cut the ground from under a Communist attempt to prepare for the proletarian revolution by undermining Christian culture.

WHITE FOR WET REFERENDUM

Emporia, Kan., May 4 (AP)—Proponents of a referendum on the prohibition question have an ally in William Allen White, Republican editor and stauch supporter of the Eighteenth Amendment.

Declaring he was for prohibition both in theory and in practice, White in an editorial yesterday said:

"A time comes in every great political issue when it must come to the people for settlement. That time has come now in prohibition.

"The resubmission of the prohibition question to a vote of the American people will help prohibition more than any other one thing."

He compared the situation with the issues which brought on the Civil War, saying he believed the American Constitution should be amended to provide against "such a crisis as this one, where the pent up wrath of a minority menaces all our institutions."

YOUTH GIVES UP LIBERTY TO AID PRISONED PAL

Concord, N. H., May 4—Through a modern Damon and Pythias friendship, Nelson Meader, 17-year-old orphan of Littleton, found himself a prisoner again today—a youth who sacrificed his own liberty that his pal might have a chance to go free.

A number of months ago young Meader was arrested on burglary charges in Franklin and appealed a finding in lower court. He was sent to Marrimack County Jail at Boscawen, where he struck up a warm friendship with Hugh Fullerton, 20, of Concord.

Fullerton is serving a year's sentence for breaking and entering and forgery, and while in the jail, according to officials, the boys were inseparable.

Last week Meader was tried in superior court at Concord and through his youth and the appeals of his counsel, he was placed on prbation and freed.

Late last night, however, when Meader was found skulking outside the jail in Boscawen he was arrested as a suspicious person. Then it was found that someone had removed a number of bricks from the outside wall of the jail building and was well on his way toward opening a large gap.

Police and the county prosecutor said today they are investigating in belief that Meader, moved by his friendship for Fullerton, was determined to give his pal freedom.

Fullerton last winter broke jail, stole a jail warden's car and had his liberty for several weeks.

'KING' CAPONE OFF TO SERVE SENTENCE

Despite the narrow limit of the upper berth and the irons binding him to a fellow prisoner, Capone slept several hours last night.

Capone was fastened with leg irons to Vito Morici, a quiet young man, charged with automobile stealing, who showed a sign of fear and talked very little to the gang chief. He is slender. Capone told him this morning he was glad he wasn't another "big fellow" or they couldn't have got in the berth together.

Although he now weighs 265 pounds, Capone claims to be in the pink of condition. He has been exercising on rowing machines and pulleys at the county jail in Chicago and said he was ready for any kind of work they gave him in Atlanta.

CROWDS GATHER EARLY

Crowds began to gather at railroad stations today as word passed down the line that the big gangster was aboard the Dixie Flyer. Even at 6 o'clock this morning there were several waiting at Evansville to get a glimpse of the notorious hoodlum. At Madisonville, Ky., fully 200 persons watched for him, but Capone, eating breakfast in his drawing room on the other side of the train, did not see the crowd.

Earlington, Ky., produced another crowd of about 150.

Although his long exile had been expected to rob him of his rule over Chicago's underworld, it was still Capone, the big boss of gangland, that was being taken to prison.

For every stop from Chicago to Atlanta provisions were made for local police or railroad detectives to watch the train from the outside, as nine guards kept vigil inside his car. U. S. Marshal H. C. W. Laubenheimer took charge of the party himself with the assertion his main object in life right now was to get Capone off his hands.

It was not a special car bearing Capone to prison, but it amounted almost to that, since it was occupied only by Capone, one other prisoner, the guards and newspapermen.

WILL QUIT "POLITICS."

With time off for good behavior Capone can cut down his sentence to about 7½ years. When he gets out, he said, he intends to "stay out of politics and all the other rackets." If he had any plans for the future he failed to reveal them.

A few minutes later, however, he indicated he had not lost all interest in the liquor-gambling syndicate that is reported to have built him a fortune.

"Anybody that says I'm for prohibition is all wet," asserted the gang czar. "It would be better if prohibition was out of the way and we could handle beer legitimately. There would be more profit, no payoffs, no loss of trucks and a cheaper price for the stuff."

Capone spent the night in the upper berth of a drawing room shackled hand and foot to the other prisoner, Vito Morici, a young Chicagoan, who is being taken to Jacksonville, Fla., to stand trial for an alleged automobile theft.

The gang chief objected to the leg irons which were clamped onto him as he prepared for bed. He said he would rather sit up all night than have those things on my legs."

But Marshal Laubenheimer said, "I'm sorry, good night," and turned out the light.

No Grand Reception for Al at Prison

Atlanta, Ga., May 4 (AP)—The 30-year-old Atlanta federal prison extended a blase and non-committal open house to Al Capone today.

Through its gates so many guests, distinguished for on reason or another, have passed that the arrival of the pudgy scar-faced gangster meant nothing in the prison's regime. There were no elaborate preparations for admission and no excitement.

Al Capone will be just another number on the roster and another gray-clad figure in a time-tried punitive program.

OTHER NOTABLES ON LIST

His name will be added to a list that already contains those of George Remus, "big time" bootlegger; Eugene V. Debs, once Socialist candidate for President; Gerald Chapman and George "Dutch" Anderson, glamorous holdup men; Warren T. McCray, former Governor of Indiana; Earl Carroll, Broadway theatrical producer, and John W Langley of Kentucky, the first congressman to be sent to prison.

Once inside the iron bars and stone walls that surround the business-like prison plant at the outskirts of South Atlanta, Capone will be swalled in silence as far as the outside world is concerned. The prison does not give information of its individual inmates.

The prison routine, where prisoners arrive by train, is to receive them on a special spur that runs into the prison walls through a double gate like a canal lock. A gate opens and closes to admit the prisoner to an enclosure, then another opens to admit him to the prison yard. The car goes out the same way.

TAILOR OR LAUNDRYMAN

Inside, the highly publicized and the lowly alike are submitted to a routine of finger-printing and photographing. Physical and mental examinations and observation follows. Then the routine of the big house swallows up the individual. He becomes a part of the laundry crew, one of the tailors, a bookkeeper or whatever is decided for him.

There was no official comment but it was reported Capone's job would be something at which he could be kept under close guard. The laundry or tailor shop, perhaps.

Capone Farewell "Just Like Mussolini's"

Chicago, May 4 (AP)—"Scarface" Al Capone is finally on his way to prison—a place he has been avoiding most of his life. Capone, the king of Chicago's gangland, was placed on a train for the federal penitentiary at Atlanta last night.

A ten-year term faces him for failing to pay income taxes on the huge profits he is reputed to have made from his illicit businesses in Chicago. In addition he is under a one-year jail sentence and a $50,000 fine for the same offense.

Vain to the last minute, the gang chief, impeaccably attired in dark blue overcoat and broad-brimmed hat, smiled broadly when he took his farewell to Chicago, and asserted he was glad to be on his way.

"GLAD FIGHT IS OVER"

"Sure, you bet," he replied when a reporter asked if he was glad his long fight to escape federal imprisonment was over.

As the flashlights of newspaper photographers boomed and sound news reel cameras were cranked, Capone smiled for the pictures. He made no attempt to cover his face as some gangsters have done before going to prison. His train is due in Atlanta at 6:30 o'clock tonight, with stops scheduled at Nashville and Chattanooga, Tenn.

The police were armed and ready to prevent any disorder. There were crowds outside the jail and some of the curious shouted, "You got a bum break, Al."

"You'd think Mussolini was passing through," remarked Capone as the trip was started to the railroad station.

On the journey to the train Capone caught a glimpse of the Federal building, scene of his greatest defeat—the place where Federal Judge James H. Wilkerson passed the 11-year sentence last October, after Capone was convicted following withdrawal of a plea of guilty.

HIDES HANDCUFFS.

Just before leaving the marshal's automobile at the station Capone's vanity asserted itself again. Noticing a small crowd gathered to see him off, he asked Marshal Leubenheimer to fix his hands so no handcuffs would show. His sleeve was pulled down and the cuffs to which he was fastened to Morici were not visible as the two prisoners were taken aboard the Pullman.

Capone made all his plans for his farewell early in the day. His mother, Mrs. Teresa Capone; his wife, Mae; his son, Alphonse, Jr., 12; his sister, Mrs. Mafalda Maritote, and a younger brother, Mathew, bade him goodbye in his cell.

He was allowed to take but $10 with him and a limited supply of clothing. Hampering baggage is not permitted for federal prisoners.

This Woman Lost 64 Pounds of Fat

Mrs. H. Price of Woodside, L. I., writes: "A year ago I weighed 190 lbs. I started to take Kruschen and now I weigh 126 and never felt better in my life and what's more, I look more like 20 yrs. old than the mother of 2 children, one 19 and the other 18. Every one of my friends say its marvelous the way I reduced."

To lose fat SAFELY and HARMLESSLY, take a half teaspoonful of Kruschen in a glass of hot water in the morning before breakfast—cut down on pastry and fatty meats—go light on potatoes, butter and sugar—don't miss a morning—a bottle that lasts 4 weeks costs but a trifle—but don't take chances—be sure it's Kruschen—your health comes first—get it at any drugstore in America. If not joyfully satisfied after the first bottle—money back.

"April 5, Nogales, Ariz.—Letters from Chubbie. Hard to analyze them. Much disturbed. Ill with worry. Chubbie, darling, what is it all about?

"April 7, Tucson—Impatience for departure brought on a bit by worry for Chubbie. She must need money and I have none. Hell;

"April 9, Tucson—Wired Chubbie. The reply worries me. If only she would send something more such as 'don't worry. I still love you.' Thank goodness for one thing — I have made a firm resolution to end all this mental strain—have it out. Then work for our common good. I adore her and want to see her happy. If only she did not drink while I was away I would feel O. K. She has two personalities. I love both personalities. Chubbie angel, it won't be long before I see you and hold you.

"April 10, Tucson — Awakened with misgivings—suffer the tortures of the damned: Telephoned Chubbie. Wish I had not. She did not make it easier for me. Am going to Miami whatever happens to find out first hand all about everything. I love you Chubbie. I have done my best—but failed. Want to talk things over with you, my sweet. It has been five years since we met."

Captain Lancaster went from Tucson to St. Louis, where he remained a day or two and then flew to Miami, arriving here on April 13.

Clarke was found dead on April 14, having been shot with a gun that Lancaster is said to have bought in St. Louis.

Capone's Long Criminal Record on Which Jail Doors Clang 'Finis!'

In Eleven Years He Sprang From Oblivion to Greatest Gang Notoriety

Chicago, May 4 (AP)—The hand of Uncle Sam has written the last entry in the imposing record of The Law vs. "Scarface" Al Capone.

"Taken to the Atlanta penitentiary May 3, 1932"—Just one line, but it drew the curtain on a career that for years is reputed to have flaunted virtual immunity in the face of law and order.

Back in January, 1921, when as a young hoodlum he began his rise to gangland leadership, the first entry appears:

"Chicago—fined $150 as keeper of disorderly house and owner of gambling paraphernalia."

FIRST MURDER QUIZ

Dismissed following arrest for questioning in Joe Howard slaying, May 8, 1924.

Chicago—Indicted by federal grand jury for violation of prohibition laws, June 7, 1926. Indictment subsequently quashed for want of evidence.

Indicted for participation in Stickney, Ill., vote fraud, July

U. S. Nets $900,000 by Jailing Capone

Chicago, May 4 (INS)—The Federal Government spent $100,000 to convict Al Capone of ncome tax evasions, but the campaign that sent him to prison has brought more than $1,000,000 in collection of delinquent taxes in the Chicago area, authorities disclosed today.

Another revenue arising from the drive against income tax violations came from fines. Ralph Capone, Al's brother, paid $10,000; Frank Nitti paid $10,000; Jake Guzik, $17,500, and Gene Oliver, $5000. Al Capone's fine was $50,000.

15, 1926. Indictment quashed in December for lack of evidence.

IN M'SWIGGIN MURDER

Charged with murder in slaying of Assistant State's Attorney William H. McSwiggin, but charge withdrawn for lack of evidence, July 28, 1926.

Indicted with 78 others for violation of prohibition law, but indictment quashed year later, October 1, 1926.

Discharged after arrest for disorderly conduct because he refused to aid police in running down his would-be assassins after an attempt on his life, November 12, 1927.

Joliet, Ill.—Fined $2600 when he and five henchmen were convicted for carrying concealed weapons, December 22, 1927.

Chicago—Cited for contempt of Federal Court when he allegedly feigned illness and refused to appear before Federal Grand Jury probing booze conditions in Chicago Heights, March 15, 1928.

Philadelphia, Pa.—Sentenced to year in prison for carrying concealed weapons, May 17, 1929.

Miami—Dismissed following arrest on open charge, May 8, 1930.

Freed after arrest during "investigation" and after spending night in jail, May 13, 1930.

Dismissed after arrest on vagrancy charge, May 17, 1930.

FINAL CHAPTER

Chicago—Sentenced by Federal Judge James H. Wilkerson to six months for contempt of court, Feb. 27, 1931.

Indicted by federal grand jury for evading $215,080 taxes on six-year income of $1,038,654, June 5, 1931.

along with 68 others charged with conspiracy to violate prohibition laws, June 12, 1931.

Capone pleaded guilty to both evasion of income taxes and liquor conspiracy, June 16, 1931.

Judge Wilkerson refused to be bound to agreement government had made for leniency (2½ years) July 30, 1931. Capone substituted plea of not guilty.

Tried before jury in Judge Wilkerson's court on income tax evasion charges. Trial started Oct. 6, 1931.

Convicted by jury on five out of 23 counts, Oct. 17, 1931.

Sentenced by Judge Wilkerson to 10 years in federal prison, one year in county jail, and fined $50,000. Refused bail and placed in Cook County jail, Oct. 24, 1931.

Conviction affirmed by United States Circuit Court of Appeals, Feb. 27, 1932.

Denied review by United States Supreme Court, May 2, 1932.

Ghostly Drama Wakes in Old Castle Sq. Under Hammer

By RUTH MUGGLEBEE

The muffled tramp of an array of ghostly feet retracing, the roads and the romance of three decades gone, sounded in the still hush of the Castle Square Theater today as all settings, furnishings and properties of the famed old playhouse were sold a auction.

It was no longer the Castle Square Theater, in name, only in memory. And in memory it will ever stand as the "Cradle of American dramatic stock." As the Arlington Theater, victim of changing conditions, it today "went by the boards."

But in the dimming memories of the playgoers the old show shop, that, in various successions, was a legitimate house, a stock theater, an opera house and again a legitimate theater and the home of stock, never has it been anything but "The Castle."

From out of the dusty storehouse today came the theater's properties which have remained untouched since last year, when the Vincent Club debutantes presented "Vices and Virtues" there.

Into the daylight came historically priceless theater furniture and properties to fall on the auction block.

George E. Clark, who in 1907 went to "The Castle" as ticket agent to treasurer and finally manager, today told of those players who at one time or another were Boston's favorites.

"When I came to The Castle 'East Lynne' was playing," he said. "There comes to my mind such names as J. C. Gilmore, Lilly Lawrence, Linsle Morrison, Howell Hansell, Lenora Bradley, who incidentally still lives in Boston; Kate Ryan, Alfred Lunt, Mary Young, John Craig, Winthrop Ames, Billy Wolfe, J. R. Murray, Clara Lane, Harry Davies, Forrest Huff, Louise LeBarron, William Charles Masson, Frances Starr, Donald Meek, George Hassell, all of whom were at some time associated with his famed playhouse.

"And today it is gone—"

GOUGERS SEIZE FOOD OF POOR FOR TAX DEBT

(This is the fifth in a series of articles exposing the tax collection racket, a form of legalized extortion which is enriching constables and other special tax collectors and victimizing reputable citizens of Massachusetts.)

The meanest tax collector has been found.

He had a tough time wrestling the title from that smart and greedy crew known as the tax collection racketeers.

But they had to hand him the palm for being cute enough to deduct a tax bill and extra charges from a grocery order which the delinquent, an East Taunton citizen, long out of work, had been credited with by a local relief committee for odd jobs he had done.

When the victim applied for the groceries he was dumb-founded to learn that the wily constable had beaten him to it, and, in collecting $7.50 for an overdue poll tax, old age pension tax and penalty charges, had almost wiped out the account.

Realizing that the voter he was hunting had no ready cash, the deputy collector, "tipped" about the grocery order, lost no time in doing his dirty work.

The saddest feature of this case was that the citizens thus robbed of his groceries for which he had toiled, had been granted an abatement on his poll and old age pension taxes for 1932 because of extended unemployment.

VICIOUS GAME

If the city tax collector and the constable whom he deputized had taken the time or trouble to weigh matters, they would have known that a citizen officially absolved from paying his 1932 tax was no more able to meet his tax for 1931, which some astute individual had dug out of the records.

But why expect too much?

If the tax collection racketeers were to be influenced by justice and ethics and ordinary procedure and common sense, there wouldn't be any racket.

The running mate of the constable who pulled the fast one about the grocery order is alleged to have acted rough and to have flourished a gun at the Portuguese Club in East Taunton to which he went in quest of a poll tax and old age pension tax delinquent, brother of the steward. A scrimmage resulted.

Tax collection methods in Taunton are reported to have been so high-handed this spring that it was made the subject of an official inquiry by the municipal council which held several public hearings. On the strength of the evidence offered the council voted to remove the offending constables—Theodore Stenecki, a former football player, and Joseph A. Labagnara of Boston.

The council ordered that these constables be notified that they would not be allowed to operate further in Taunton and they left the city after a hectic campaign. Among those who appeared before the council to complain against the constables were William Kirby, Frank Carney, Manuel Teixeira and Miss Kable of 26 Caswell st. These and others complained not only of the methods but of the charges levied.

Senator James G. Moran of Mansfield appeared before the municipal council in Taunton and said his bill governing collection of taxes had been designed to stop racketeering by limiting travel charges to $5 and confining deputy tax collectors to their home districts.

Deputy Sheriff Byrne told the council that with the exception of travel expense the amended law permitted higher charges than the original chapter.

Deputy Byrne explained that the old law only allowed $1 for arrest, 50 cents for a warrant, 8 cents a mile to New Bedford and $1.75 a week for jail board. The new law, he said, allowed $2 for arrest, $4 for custody, $5 for automobile to go to New Bedford and $1.75 for board. Byrne admitted that under the old law constables charged mileage from Boston to Taunton city hall and from city hall to the city or town in which the delinquent was located.

Enforcement of the provisions of the amended law has proved a greater hardship to the citizens and far more profitable to the tax collection racketeers. It is true, as Senator Moran pointed out, that traveling expense has been held down to $5, but the increase in allowance for arrest from $1 to $2 and the added plum of $4 for custody that seldom takes place, has more than made up for the doing away with unlimited mileage at the rate of eight cents a mile, depending on where the quarry was found.

Are You a Victim?

Have YOU been caught in the tax collection racket and forced to pay a sum out of all proportion to your tax, or go to jail?

If you have, write your experience to the Tax Editor, Boston Evening American, giving amount of tax, amount of forced payment, and how, if possible, it was computed by the collection agent, the date of tax and of payment and to whom the money was paid. Your name will not be published, if you so desire.

REAP IN RICHES

One of the greatest evils, under both the old and amended laws, has been this practice of sending constables to distant points to collect old bills which should be collected by constables in the immediate neighborhood. This has given play to the "politics" and "graft" in the racket. It gives tax collectors a chance to hand "plums" to favorites. Certain tax collectors of cities and towns are said to be in league with professional collection agencies and whack up on the proceeds. This collusion is said to have developed the racket to its present obnoxious proportions.

Councilman F. J. Smith, who took an active part in the Taunton tax investigation, told the council about the constable who went to an East Taunton grocer and deducted the tax bill and extras from a grocery order given a delinquent by the local unemployment committee.

"The major evil of the tax collection system at present as I view it," said Councilman Smith to the Boston Evening American today, "is the deliberate delay on the part of certain constables in order to pile up extra charges. Many of them prefer not to locate the delinquent too quickly. They pretend they couldn't find him, if he has moved, when often the simplest inquiry would direct them to the new place of abode.

"Rough tactics were used from all accounts by the two constables whose operations in Taunton were suddenly ended by vote of the council. There was quite a rumpus at the Portuguese Club. A window in the constable's car was smashed among other things and witnesses said they saw the constable draw a gun.

"Mrs. Margaret Ashworth, who received a tax bill of $12 on a little piece of land in Dighton, told the constable that the city could have the parcel as she and her husband couldn't afford to pay taxes on it any longer. In spite of that agreement on her part she received a threatening letter from one of the constables.

By GILBERT SELDES

IT IS ALWAYS AMUSING to hear philosophers tell old wives' tales. Sometimes they say what everyone knows in terms no one can understand, sometimes they repeat the wisdom of the ages as if they had just discovered it themselves. When Horace Greeley read an elaborate analysis of the character of Margaret Fuller, perhaps the greatest woman intellectual of her time, he wrote that "noble and great as she was, a good husband and two or three bouncing babies would have emancipated her from a deal of cant and nonsense." Half of the amateur psychoanalysists today would substitute lover for husband and probably omit the babies, but all of them would be repeating the wisdom of peasants ten thousand years ago.

GILBERT SELDES

Poets and Pessimists

One of the familiar attitudes toward poetry and pessimism—they go together more often now than they used to—grew out of the idea that poets and pessimists both were not healthy, normal human beings. Here is a modern restatement of the same idea:

"It is customary to attribute modern pessimism to the decay of faith and the difficulty of finding some continuous and fruitful purpose in life. I doubt, however, whether this is a correct analysis, or, at any rate, whether it goes to the root of the matter. I think the lack of zest and of fruitful purpose itself has physiological causes. A man in a really good physical condition finds something to believe in, whereas a man whose digestion or glands are out of order is a prey to all the gloomy forms of doubt and despair.

"Get a Large Hoe"

"I believe that if our pessimists were subjected to a rigorous regimen of physical exercise, simple but wholesome diet and long hours of sleep they would begin to find all sorts of things worth doing, and would feel hopeful as to the possibility of doing some of these things themselves. Any man who contemplates writing a book or engaging in any form of preaching or propaganda should be obliged to do an hour's digging or other outdoor manual work before breakfast. By that time breakfast would be such a delight that throughout the rest of the day he would be incapable of thinking that all is vanity.

An Apple a Day

"Those who resisted this regimen and still remained pessimistic should be subjected to something more severe; they should be allowed only an apple and a glass of milk for their breakfast and should be compelled to do outdoor physical exercise until midday. After the midday meal most of them would fall asleep, but the few who remained awake might write books worth reading."

The author of these remarks is not Mr. George F. Babbitt, well-known realtor. He is Bertrand Russell, the equally well-known philosopher. And Mr. Russell is saying exactly what Rudyard Kipling said at least 20 years ago in one of the most charming of the Just So Songs, "The Camel's Hump." The prescription for the hump, which we call the blues, was, as I recall it:

"Now, the cure for this ill is not to sit still
Or frowst with a book by the fire,
But to get a large hoe, and a shovel also
And dig till you gently perspire."

Sallow Complexions

For myself, I do not quote Mr. Russell in order to disagree, only to show that simple and vulgar ideas can occur to the finest minds. My own opinion is even more gross than Mr. Russell's. It seems to me that the real crime of modern civilization is that it first wrecks our natural health and then salvages the wreck by too many pills. I am told that doctors walking along the street identify men and women not as stenographers, trucksters, blondes, beauties, and the like, but as cardiac cases, incipient paralytics, and all the rest of their categories. I find in my walks that I am impressed by the ugliness of some people and the intense worry, which approaches a perpetual fear, in the appearance of others. I do not think that a political and industrial system which makes most people unwell and unhappy is a particularly intelligent one. I think that a plank in a party program declaring not for conservation of national health, but actually for good health, might be more attractive than any plank on taxes or war debts.

I do not think that the Prince of Wales ought to be allowed out by himself. The official speeches of royalty are written by responsible ministers, but those dear sentiments, the little asides, are spontaneous and dangerous. The other day the Prince accidentally stepped on the toes of a young boy named Patrick. "Now, Patrick," he said, "you step on my toes." This may be democracy, but it is bad manners and shows, in reverse, a mean, revengeful spirit. If the Prince wants to turn the other toe, he ought not to do it to young commoners who cannot refuse. What most of us would feel like doing in such circumstances is not expressible in ordinary print.

SMITH APPEALS TO PAY RASKOB

New York, May 4 (AP)—Alfred E. Smith has appealed to the Democratic party to pay back to National Chairman John J. Raskob $320,000 it still owes him, both because it is a just debt, he said, and in order that the party may function as an untrammeled organization.

"I make no appeal for Mr. Raskob as an individual," the 1928 Democratic standard bearer said. "I speak for him in his official capacity as chairman of the national Democratic party. He advanced money at the rate of $10,000 a month, and the party is now indebted to him to the extent of $320,000.

Guards have been osted about the home of Police uperintendent William B. Mills n 24-hour daily service, and about he homes of Mayor J. Hampton 'oore and director of Public Safety ern Dodge.

SOUTH DAKOTA, ALABAMA GIVE ROOSEVELT 34

New York, May 4—Out of primary contests other than that of California, Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt was assured of all 24 Alabama convention votes, as well as the ten from South Dakota which he took unopposed. These brought his total instructed, pledged and claimed to 303.

President Hoover's "regular" slate of delegates in South Dakota was running ahead of the "Progressive" anti-Hoover candidates, indicating he would add the state's 11 to the 720 instructed, pledged and claimed total he already holds. A Mississippi convention of administration-recognized Republicans confirmed the 11 votes counted for him.

Congressional races in Indiana showed four representatives fought by the wets leading their opponents. The four, Hogg and Purnell, Republicans, Larrabee and Ludlow, Democrats, had cast their votes against resubmission of the Eighteenth Amendment. Other incumbents running on wet platforms, however, were also leading in their respective districts.

Senator Hugo Black of Alabama, apparently was winning Democratic renomination, though his vote still lacked the majority over four opponents needed to avert a run-off primary.

Senator Peter Norbeck was leading his opposition in the South Dakota Republican contest by a vote which seemed to assure renomination.

G. O. P. IN R. I. URGE RUM POLL

Providence, R. I., May 4 (AP)—Indorsing President Hoover for renomination, and urging re-submission of the Eighteenth Amendment to state conventions of the union, the Republican state convention met here today and elected eight delegates and eight alternates to attend the national convention in Chicago next June 14.

The indorsement resolution does not bind th estate delegates definitely to vote for Hoover and Curtis. It is taken to mean that Republicans here have taken cognizance of the opposition to the renomination of Vice-President Curtis.

Crew Takes to Boats When Liner Grounds

Capetown, May 4 (INS)—The British freighter Haliartus, a vessel of 5294 tons, went aground in a fog off Bull Point, 30 miles from Mossel bay, today. The crew took to the boats while the German liner Ussukuma rushed to the rescue. The Haliartus was believed a total loss.

Especially after seeing some moving pictures of the last trip made by this adventuresome craft and Mr. and Mrs. Skipper . . . delightful people . . . What a thrill to ride the waves in so small a craft, tossed about by the winds but keeping a straight course nevertheless . . . that sounds almost philosophical, doesn't it? . . . sailing anywhere the spirit wishes and only going into port when the supplies run low. A marvelous adventure for a young man before he "marries and settles down."

She told an amazing little incident about her performance in which she takes the part of a private secretary . . . and were we qualified to judge her proficiency? . . . we were, and mark her O. K. Well, she was seated at her typewriter . . . on the stage, of course . . . rattling away in a most businesslike manner when she suddenly realized she had no paper in the machine . . . and none in sight, so she tore a piece off a newspaper that was on the table and hastily rolled it in. WILLARD SETTLEMENT HOUSE TO BENEFIT

'Little Women' Will Be Given in Bedford

The dramatization of Louisa M. Alcott's famous book, "Little Women," recently produced at Concord and at Cambridge by the Concord Players, is to be given again in Lexington in the Cary Memorial Hall on Saturday afternoon and evening for the benefit of the Llewsac Lodge in Bedford, one of the homes maintained by the Frances E. Willard Settlement. Llewsac Lodge offers rest and vacation to tired and convalescent women.

One glance at the wardrobe of "Little Women" would be enough to induce the majority of ladies to see the coming performance if for no other reason than to see what the well-dressed women of 1865 wore. The gentlemen are quite as grand as the ladies, and they are all possessed of considerable hirsute adornment.

On Display

If by chance you go to Lexington this week, it will be worth your while to look at the display of Alcott Memorabilia in the window of the Lexington Savings Bank, loaned through the kindness of Mrs. F. Alcott Pratt of Concord. To the rear of the window hangs "Marmee's" shawl and in front of it is a portrait of Miss Alcott made at the time she wrote "Little Women." Below the picture are four dolls representing Meg, Jo, Beth and Amy. In the Players production of Little Women, Meg is to wear a dress similar to that worn by the doll, Meg.

Photographs of members of the Alcott family are on display and also a drawing of their home, cleverly sketched by May. The manuscript books and portfolio are Miss Alcott's and the linen hold-all was carried by her on many occasions.

Patronesses

Among a very few of the many patronesses for this popular production are: Mrs. Henry B. Day, who is president of the Frances E. Willard Settlement House, Mrs. H. Addington Bruce, vice-president, Mrs. Elmer A. Stevens, assistant treasurer, and also Mesdames Dudley L. Pickman, Daniel Wing, William A. Morrill, Richard Webster, F. L. Emery, Sydney Wrightington, Edward P. Merriam, Edward C. Stone, William L. [illegible], [illegible]ert P. Clapp, [illegible] [illegible]merbune and many others.

Dance Recital by Children

Spring seems to be the season for dance recitals, which is most appropriate, and the newest one announced will be held by the Dana Sieveling School of Dance, in the Repertory Theater on Thursday evening, May 12, at 8:15 o'clock. About 100 pupils, many of them from prominent Boston families will take part.

An outstanding feature of the recital will be "L'enfant de mon Reve," created by Dana Sieveling to music composed by Ina Mai Bentley, with clarinet accompaniment by Andrew Jacobson. In the opening scene the youngest pupils of the school ranging from three to six years old, will portray Mother Goose rhymes.

Another striking feature of the program will be a number to Addison Porter's "Prelude." The young girls taking part in this number include Susan Dalton, Dorothy Adams, Beatrice Necks, Olive Bogart, Dorothy Goward, Patricia Pierce, Alice Jackson and Lois MacKenchnie. Also Priscilla Anderson, Beatrice de Kalb and Dana Sieveling. Miss Edythe R. Horne, assistant to Miss Sieveling, will do several solo numbers as will also Miss Sieveling.

Books—And a Number of Things

By CHARLES HANSON TOWNE

LETTER TO A MAN OF THE WORLD

Dear Henry: Well as I know you, I am not sure, in these shifting times, just what your political tendencies may be now. There was a period when you were a conservative; but you have always had an open mind, and been avidly interested in the changes that have swept over the world, startling some of us, convincing others that no matter what the new order may bring it will be for the best.

I have often heard you, who have lived so much abroad, discuss the policies of Mussolini, and express doubt as to the wisdom of his dictatorship. I believe you think better about Ramsay MacDonald, but recently you told a group of us one night at the club that you thought he might prove the salvation of the British Empire. You disliked Briand with that cordial hatred which your friends delight in hearing you let loose. You think democracy has been a failure, and you have, like most thoughtful men, been greatly concerned with the problems that confront this country.

All of which leads me to tell you that, with your large vision, you will be deeply interested in a new book I have just finished reading. It is "Rebels and Renegades," published by Macmillan, and written by one who signs himself "Max Nomad." This is the pen name of a political emigrant from pre-war Europe who has been either a sympathetic observer of or an active participant in the extreme left-wing revolutionary movements in Poland, Austria, Switzerland, Germany, Russia, England, France, Italy and Turkey before the war, and in the United States since the war. His publishers tell us that he has been, in turn, typesetter, linotype operator, translator, metal worker, smuggler, teacher of languages, journalist and editor.

A busy life! Yes; and now he has had time to prepare a series of portraits of outstanding representatives of contemporary revolutionary tendencies. He tells you at once that no attempt has been made to deal with the personal lives of these leaders. The biographical method has been used as a convenient means of bringing out the cross currents and internal conflicts which have been agitating the revolutionary and labor movements during the last few generations.

The men he writes of are seven in number—Malatesta, Briand Scheidemann, MacDonald, Trotsky, Mussolini, Pilsudsky and William Z. Foster. After summing up their careers, he draws certain conclusions, and his last words are that "with the eventual equalization of wages for manual and mental workers, the apparent goal of such struggle, higher education becomes accessible to all alike. The rest is a new page in human history."

A man like you in a world of practical affairs, cannot fail to be aware of what is going on, not only in Russia, but here, and in every civilized country. You desire to be informed. I know that you have often attended radical meetings and listened to the "reds" in Union Sq. You have watched bread lines and been depressed by economic conditions, like all thinking citizens. You have wondered and pondered; and this volume will give you something more to consider. You will see how men have dedicated themselves, with an almost religious frenzy, to the causes they hold dear; men like Foster, poorly educated, willing to suffer imprisonment and pain if in the end he can help to alleviate the burdens resting on the backs of the poor.

Our author can use words that stab. Of Mussolini you will find him saying:

"All his activities of the last years tend to show that he is out not merely for a dictatorship surrounded by an aristocracy of merit. The man who in 1919, three years before his march on Rome, demanded the abolition of all titles of nobility, has now undertaken to protect the existing titles against all kinds of interlopers. He even includes in his protection the papal nobility, hitherto not recognized in Italy. Nobility of birth, cheapened by past Italian disunion and misrule, is to be restored to its ancient splendor and to become a closed corporation, like the Fascist nobility."

You will get a good picture of the Trotsky of today:

"In the meantime, Trotsky, in his Turkish exile, is engaging in the entertaining pastime of issuing encyclical aftr ncyclical and thesis after thesis to his scant number of faithful followers in Russia and in the rest of the world. The situation in Russia, the crisis in Germany, the revolution in Spain, the civil war in China, and the mistakes committed in all these questions by the Russian Communist party and the Communist International—all these come in for a merciless analysis under his trenchant pen.

"It is not his intention, so he avers, to create a new Communist International and new Communist parties in competition with the official bodies, as it is not his intention to overthrow the existing Soviet regime by force. By boring from within and from without he expects, sooner or later, to see the triumph of his cause in Russia and in the Communist International. But he has a rather hard time of it, and this hope of his seems much like a willful self-destruction, enabling him to keep up his spirits under the weight of his own personal crushing defeat."

Too Much Time Now

Machines have speeded up production so that the workday and week are shorter and getting shorter.

Pres. Green, A. F. of Labor, declares we must have a five-hour day and a five-day week. So on his word I respectfully submit the question, do we need "Daylight Saving" any longer? So I urge you, fellow citizens, to agitate a return to normal, healthy Standard Time.

Good Show by the "Reds"

The "Reds" put on a great show on the Common Monday, but did they know that the "Father of All Reds was looking down on them from a vantage point." I refer to Washington's portrait that adorns the State House.

George Washington had a price on his head during the American Revolution and was signalized by the British as a "dyed in the wool radical" and whose inspiration overthrew the Russian autocracy and inaugurated the "United States of Russia."

SPIRIT OF SAM ADAMS.

For 3 Per Cent Mortgages

Several billions could be released for purchases and employment by a reduction of interest rates on real estate mortgages to 3 per cent. This would not be an unreasonably low rate under present conditions, it could even be proved a high rate. With the Boston tax rate 3 per cent or more and interest rates at 6 per cent—figure out how much is left for repairs. This 9 per cent would in itself cause a depresison.

What is the yearly loss on the Dorchester Rapid Transit to the Elevated and what is the loss in poor service to other parts of the city?

A subway along Washington st., Warren st. and Blue Hill ave. to Franklin Park, with 12 new stations, would put Boston on the map and stop its decay.

A RESIDENT.

Another Program

I have never smoked or indulged in any form of intoxicants in my life, but it is my opinion that since prohibition came to curse our once prosperous land, crime, kidnaping and legalized tax racketeering have increased a thousand fold.

Only a fool would deny this. If Mr. Hoover is sincere and really wants to economize, here is how to do it—suspend prohibition for six months, give all federal "dry" agent a six months vacation without pay. That would be real economy, not G. O. P. Bunk.

Have they the back-bone to do this? The answer is NO!

Our Male Curiosity

Is that a fact that women cannot any longer conceal their age that an item in your paper called attention to?

They now steal one solitary hair from a woman's head, if it is not given willingly, place that hair under a powerful miscroscope, and look for rings, just as they look for rings encircling a tree.

They count those rings, according to E. Carlton Hood of the Scientific Crime Detection laboratory of the No. Western University, and those rings stand for so many years and then! Men want to know everything. Talk about your curiosity of a woman.

RED GENERAL WARNS FOES OF SOVIETS

Moscow, May 4 (AP)—Moscow newspapers today published a May Day speech by Gen. Vassily Contantinowich Bluecher, commander of the Red army at Khabarovsk, in which he warned that while Soviet Russia desires peace, she stands ready to defend her borders against any foe.

The publication of Gen. Bleucher's speech was coincident with with charges that the Japanese had inspired Russian "White Guard" demonstrations in Manchuria as a prelude to seizing the Chinese Eastern Railway, of which Russia is co-owner with China.

These provocations, the dispatch added, were aimed at "the arrest of leaders of Soviet institutions in Manchuria and the seizure of the Chinese Eastern Railway."

The commander of the Far Eastern department of the Red army, reviewing the troops on May Day, administered the oath of fidelity to the soldiers and said:

"Let this note sound like an iron call to strength and to fight. Let it be heard by the proletariat of all the world and all those who would dare try to prevent the socialist development of Soviet Russia.

"Not far from the border we see flashes of war. We know the capitalists are ready to fight and to attempt to smother the Soviet Union. We don't want war; we only want to build our socialist economy. But let everyone be assured the Red army is ready at any moment to defend our country."

14 Drinks at 50 Cents Each for Evidence 'Too Much'

Chicago, May 4 (AP)—Federal Judge George A. Carpenter says he is in favor of economy in obtaining evidence in liquor cases. He expressed himself after Charles J. Wallett, a prohibition agent, told of buying 14 drinks at 50 cents each to obtain evidence against Morris Cannon, a druggist.

"In these days," said the court, "when the government is trying to cut expenses, you should economize. Get your evidence more cheaply. One drink will do as well as 14."

Cannon was sentenced to 60 days in jail and fined $200.

BANKS SCORED IN KREUGER'S BIG CRASH

Stockholm, May 4 (AP)—Ivar Kreuger, Swedish match king, had been summoned from the United States to appear before representatives of the national banks of Sweden and in Berlin when he committed suicide in Paris in March, the banking committee of the Riksdag reported today.

The report, which was approved by a majority of the committee, censured the management of the national bank, the Riksbank.

Six business associates of Kreuger who have been arrested in connection with the investigation into his world-wide affairs, will be given their first hearings Friday

It was disclosed today that Foreign Minister Hellner, who was sent to Rome to clear up the Italian end of the Kreuger tangle, had been informed by Premier Mussolini that Kreuger had forged the name of the Italian finance minister, Mosconi, to an Italian match monopoly which never was granted.

FIVE BILLIONS IN BILL FOR PROSPERITY

Washington, May 4 (US)—Authorization for a $5,000,000,000 prosperity bond issue to finance a gigantic public works program and bring back better times, would be given under a bill sponsored by Rep. Loring M. Black, Jr. (D), of New York, and on file in the House today.

Notice was served by Black that he will oppose adjournment of Congress until it has passed legislation providing for a vast public construction program to give employment to millions of persons.

FOR 3 GREAT HIGHWAYS

The Black bill provides also for construction of three transcontinental highways. One would be across the northern part of the country, another through the center and the third across the south. They would be designated "Road of Prosperity," "Road of Peace" and "Road of Glory."

The measure also includes features contained in the public works bill introduced in the Senate by Senator Wagner (D. of New York.

On introducing his bill yesterday, Representative Black paid tribute to William Randolph Hearst for proposing a prosperity bond issue to pay for needed public works, give employment and stimulate business generally.

"HEARST PLAN SOUND"

Representative Black said:

"Mr. Hearst for many months has been advocating a substantial prosperity bond issue to carry on a large public works program. He has pointed to the way out of present economic conditions. His plan is absolutely sound."

The secretary of the treasury would be empowered by the bill to issue bonds for the emergency construction fund to the extent cash is needed to carry on the work expeditiously. The entire $5,000,000,000 in government bonds would not be sold at one time.

Treaty Navy Bill Before Senate Today

Washington, May 4 (AP)—Legislation to authorize building the United States fleet to treaty limits came before the Senate today for action.

Pressed by Senator Hale of Maine, chairman of the naval committee, the bill was given its chance yesterday by a 46 to 25 vote against a proposal to hold it up, pending developments at the Geneva disarmament conference. Hale sees substantial strength for the bill's passage.

THIS IS LIFE

WOMAN WHO COULD NOT 'SEE' ALICE WAS NOT TO THE MANNER BORN

By ROBERT E. ROGERS

A YEAR OR TWO AGO when I was doing a radio broadcast of Christmas books I happened to speak of the perennial children's books. At once I received a plaintive letter from a lady, asking me if I could explain what people saw in "Alice in Wonderland." She never could understand it at all, wrote the lady, and she felt so out of it. What was there so extraordinary about such a silly story?

PROF. ROGERS

The Rev. Charles Lutwidge Dodgson, tutor in mathematics at Oxford University would have appreciated that letter, for I suspect that often he sat holding his head, wondering how a promising career in mathematics could have so gone astray that he was doomed to the end of time to be remembered, not as the author of "An Elementary Treatise on Determinants" but as Lewis Carroll, who told the stories of Alice, in Wonderland and Through the Looking Glass.

Indeed when Queen Victoria asked him for a copy of his book, it was the mathematics book he sent her and when Edward Bok bearded him in his don's chambers at Oxford, seeking to bribe him with untold gold to write a new "Alice" for the children of America, he refused to admit that he was Lewis Carroll or that he had ever written "Alice." So the editor of the Ladies' Home Journal went away, like the rich young ruler, sorrowful.

Own Son Scorned Her Story

Which only goes to show that vocations and avocations are ticklish things. Poor Charles Dodgson! How many tales as good as Alice might he have given to a world that is overrun with mathematicians and has no need of them, but that was only one Lewis Carroll! But he was a clergyman and a don and a mathematician—and it was a blessed miracle that he gave us Alice at all.

Today Alice Liddell, about 80 years old, is in New York celebrating the 100th birthday anniversary of the young tutor who, when he was 30, rowed with her in a boat among the scented rushes and told her and Secunda and Tertia the story of "Alice's Adventures Underground." That was 70 years ago. Curiously, Alice's picture, taken in those high and far-off days, shows a little girl with quite a modern Dutch cut bob, not at all the long straight locks that John Tenniel's prim, starched, rather severe Alice wore. (Why, by the way, was Tenniel's Alice's head always a little too large for her height? Never mind, no one else ever saw her so clearly as Tenniel.)

I can't answer the lady. I suspect that either you are born fated to love Alice—or you aren't. (Alice's own son, for instance, couldn't go her when he was a boy.) Of course, the book that you have read aloud to you when you are very young is likely to mean more to you than the one that a librarian forces upon you with the remark that this is very famous and you must appreciate it.

Logic May Irritate You

But I suspect that it goes deeper than that. If you are a very practical person, with a profound sense of the actuality of the visible three-dimensional world, you may not care for Alice at all. If you think of mathematics as being principally a check on the right change when shopping, you may think the Red Queen's arithmetic rather silly. If you believe that this world of ours is what it seems to be, the White Queen who becomes a sheep and the shop that becomes a boat will only irritate you. If you use language loosely, as most of us do, confident that your meaning gets over just the same, you won't relish being pulled up sharp with Humpty Dumpty's and the Mad Hatter's strict logic.

But perhaps you are a Platonist at heart and realize that appearances mean nothing compared with the reality behind phenomena. Then you will know instinctively that Kings and Queens are only packs of cards. If you are dissatisfied with Jack-and-Jill's school curriculum, you will wish wistfully that your children might enjoy the really sensible studies of the Mock Turtle and the Gryphon. In a world where everything is relative, you will be glad that Lewis Carroll appreciated the fact before Einstein was born, when he saw Alice risking her sanity in a world where nothing remained the same size or value two minutes in succession.

You will recognize with a little thrill at the essential rightness of it all that this world is full of people like the White Queen, who have jam yesterday and jam tomorrow but never jam today—the folks who live in the Utopia of the future or in the golden age of the past. And how often does international diplomacy seem a matter of bleeding first and pricking your finger later! Children do turn into pigs all too frequently—and the moral of that is, as the Duchess said . . .

The scented rushes that you can't reach are always more beautiful than those you pick, which melt away so instantaneously. And in America, at least, you have to run just as fast as you can to stay in the same place and twice as fast to get anywhere. The best way to arrive anywhere is often to walk in the opposite direction—and we are all only a part of the Red King's dream.

Some of us like "Wonderland" better and some of us prefer "The Looking Glass." The first is charming and amusing and childlike, marvelous as only a child's dream world is marvelous, with all the methodical madness of a dream. (For Lewis Carroll really stole a march on Freud as well as on Einstein). "Wonderland" is as full of strange animals and quaint beings as Hans Christian Anderson's world.

But "Through the Looking Glass" is profoundly wise and mysterious, the dream world of a mathematician who is also a Platonist. One feels in the Wonderland an idle tale actually told to children on a summer's day. But in the Looking Glass world are the symbols of a thoughtful man lying awake o' nights and striving to reduce this world of fantastic and changing appearances to some kind of rational order. But reason, too, is protean and the reality behind appearances is so different from anything we believe we have a right to expect. It is, as a matter of fact, brillig and the slithy toves do gyre and gimble in the wabe. The borogroves are mimsy and the mome raths are never silent.

We wait in the tulgey wood, hoping our blade is really vorpal. And the Jabberwock comes whiffling and burbling! God grant that we go gallumphing back with his head, on that frabjous day when all seems so dark. Till that day comes there are always shoes and ships to talk about—and cabbages and kings. For Alice's world is only our world after all, seen in the bright oblique light of the poet's imagination.

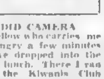
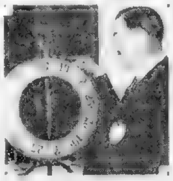
Visiting the Kiwanians With the Candid Camera



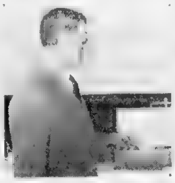
By CANDID CAMERA

When the fellow who carries me about got hungry a few minutes after noon, we dropped into the City Club for lunch. There I ran smack into the Kiwanis Club luncheon with all the cheering and handclapping and all-around good fellowship. The Kiwanians are certainly doing all they can for unfortunates, and I'm going to try and show you how they do it.

Here's a boss man we photographed for you. We'd have you know Lester W. Minchen, president of the club. He calls the meeting to order with that bell. Hardly a Liberty Bell, as it means discipline or order. It was Mr. Minchen who introduced the speaker of the day, Prof. Philip Cabot, of Harvard Business School. He made a dandy speech on present economic conditions. Then he gave good tips on how to restore the 1929-bankroll.



If somebody disobeys the bell he has to spin his wheel to determine how much he owes the Kiwanis fund for underprivileged children. Here's E. W. Billman, last year's president, putting up his forfeit.



This is another past president of the Boston Kiwanis putting in his cash. David M. Cook doesn't seem very sorry about having been naughty in a good cause. Well, boys will be boys. He paid a quarter. (Staff photos.)

ELDERLY VICTIM CARRIED OUT BY FIREMEN

Occupants of Three-Apartment Dwelling Driven Out by Clouds of Smoke

An elderly man was rescued by firemen, and about 20 persons, clad in nightclothing, were driven to the street during a fire in the first floor of a three story building at 325 St. Paul st. Brookline, early today.

A. H. Petrain, 60, a ma[illegible] tenant of the first floor apartment, was rescued by Hoseman J. J. McCarthy and P. J. Ryan, who broke in the door of his suite and found him in bed, overcome by smoke.

OFFICER GIVES ALARM

Thick smoke rolled up through the entire building arousing other occupants. All fled.

The fire was discovered by Patrolman Homer Campbell, who saw smoke coming from the first floor. He shouted to a milkman, who was passing at the time, ordering him to sound the alarm. He then entered the building.

The milkman went to a fire station a short distance away and notified firemen.

McCarthy and Ryan found the door of Petrain's apartment locked and forced it open. The suite was filled with smoke and they had difficulty in locating Petrain. He was unconscious and the pair lifted him from his bed and carried him outside.

A physician was summoned and succeeded in reviving him.

Firemen managed to confine the flames to Petrain's apartment but the smoke spread through the entire building.

Fire officials stated that the blaze had apparently started in a divan. They estimated damage at $[illegible].

3 WARRANTS IN GRAY ESCAPE

Three warrants were issued by Judge Duff in municipal court today in connection with the escape on March 31 of William F. (Bad Willie) Gray, bandit desperado, then awaiting trial and Vincent Zamotel, a trusty, from Charles st. jail.

Gray and Zamotel are charged with escaping from a penal institution and William Weyand of Jamaica Plain, identified as one of two men who hired the Columbus ave. room where the pair were recaptured, was charged with aiding in the escape.

PAROLE ENDS IN ROW OVER GIRL

A red-headed girl was the cause of it all. She entered the life of William C. Lowther, 25, and his troubles began.

Yet Lowther doesn't blame the girl. With fine chivalry he blames his own failure to keep up his correspondence. There was a little matter of a regular report by letter to the New Hampshire parole board which he overlooked.

And so the parole board asked Boston police to find him. That wasn't so easy, but today a man telephoned and said Lowther had threatened him. He gave Lowther's address on Hemenway st., Back Bay, and police arrested him.

It seems that Lowther's red-headed girl scratched the other man's wife. Lowther says the other man called her names and he admits replying with threats. So the other man told the police.

Now Lowther goes back to New Hampshire State Prison to finish a 10-year term for breaking and entering, with five years and a half to go.

BROOKLINE FIRE ROUTS THEM OUT OF BED

Domitille D'Entremont with Mickey, after their flight from 327 St. Paul st., Brookline, when fire threatened to spread from 325, next door. She is a maid for Mrs. D. J. Daley who only moved to St. Paul st. Saturday.

BEATRICE LITTAUER [illegible]

When fire broke out at 325 St. Paul st., and firemen carried A. H. Petrain, 60, out unconscious, Beatrice and Marjorie Littauer, 11 and 13, respectively, thought it was time to leave their home next door, so they got out.

Tasty Premiums Barbers' Weapons in Price War

Competition is not only the life of trade but the driving wheel of the vehicle of our civilization's progress. 3 Fined $1400 After $10,000 Rum Seizure

A seizure of $10,000 worth of liquor in Revere on Dec. 22 resulted in three men being fined a total of $1400 in Federal court today.

Harry Parker of Franklin ave., Revere, and John Bono of North st., North End, paid fines of $500 each, and Albert Finn, alias Abraham Fox of Centennial ave., Revere, paid a $400 fine. All pleaded guilty to possessing liquor.

CHAPTER XV

By BERT FORD

Martin Lomasney faced the bitterest test and the greatest [illegible] in his long and exciting political career as a delegate to the Massachusetts constitutional convention in 1917.

The former [illegible] newsboy, [illegible] and lamplighter [illegible] the college of hard knocks crossed forces with many of the [illegible] intellectual giants in [illegible] and won. The ordeal [illegible] for everything Martin [illegible] greatest personal [illegible] him the toga of a [illegible]

[illegible] necessary to depend [illegible] of Lomasney's [illegible] his success at [illegible] sessions. The highest [illegible] from the Republican [illegible]

[illegible] Loring, brother of [illegible] of the Supreme [illegible] from Beverly, in [illegible] Commonwealth History of Massachusetts, chapter XXI, [illegible] "The Fourth Congressional Convention," with the sub-caption "The Political Awakening," [illegible] about the idol of the West End:

"Lomasney, whom Anderson of Newton characterized 'a man whose heart is as big as his head is clear,' established an influence in the convention, second to none, by his honesty, practical common sense and plain but vigorous English.

"He was born of Irish parents in Boston. His business was real estate and he was a politician by occupation, having served six terms as alderman, two terms in the Senate and 11 in the House.

Retort Courteous

He Made Speeches on Nearly All Amendments

"He was popularly known as the 'Mahatma of Ward 8'. He is a Catholic and was a member of the committee on the Bill of Rights and file the broad proposal which afterwards became the Anti-Aid Amendment.

"He made no long addresses, but pungent, short speeches on nearly every subject. The adoption of his general measure, in place of the elaborate, detailed amendment proposed by the committee in the public-trading matter, was a great personal triumph.

"When Anderson (George W.) of Brookline spoke of the presumption of Lomasney's 'utterances,' Lomasney replied: 'The gentlemen of this body who have served with us know who is the "turkey cock" that goes swinging through the chamber. I don't think there is anything of that in me. I have no swelled head.'

"On another occasion he referred to Pillsbury (Albert E. of Wellesley) as 'that old fox,' which greatly amused the latter. His general attitude was conservative. He cast his influence against any enactment of the tax laws and against biennial elections, but voted in favor of the initiative and referendum."

The "Anderson of Newton" quoted by Loring as having said Lomasney's "heart is as big as his head is clear," was the Rev. Frederick Lincoln Anderson, a professor at Newton Theological Seminary. Delegate Loring who made personal reference to less than 12 of the delegates topped the list with Lomasney and wrote more about him than any of the others.

Fight Is Bitter

Lomasney Wins Out Over Anti-Aid Amendment

The voters elected 320 delegates to the constitutional convention, which assembled at the State House June 6, 1917 and did not end their deliberations until Aug. 13, 1919. Although some 200 separate proposals were submitted, the convention ratified only 22 amendments which were submitted to the voters.

Loring in his book shows how Lomasney defeated Anderson of Brookline on the Anti-Aid amendment as follows:

"The committee reported the Lomasney proposal (four dissenting). Anderson reported his narrower proposal and an amendment to the report of the com-

GIRL PLEADS TO HELP HER FIANCE

Muriel Dunlap, Caught After Holdup, Awaits Arraignment in Court

Sobbing out her [illegible] ex-Marine arrested [illegible] South End [illegible] holdup, Miss Muriel Dunlap declared today that she [illegible] for him and take [illegible] til he is able [illegible] feet.

The [illegible] that she [illegible] Carmen [illegible] 25, [illegible] ceremony [illegible] End, [illegible] told her story [illegible] raignment [illegible] living [illegible] Marine.

As she [illegible] failed [illegible] a desperate [illegible] his sweetheart [illegible] a cot in City Hospital recovering from four stab wounds inflicted by his intended holdup victim, Torcs Akashian, South End [illegible].

Arraigned then before Judge Zottoli, the girl pleaded guilty and was ordered held at the House of the Good Shepherd [illegible] for disposition.

Sergt. Henry Bailey declared to the court that Muriel had told [illegible] she lived with her mother [illegible] in the same room in the South End but that her mother disappeared a week ago.

A plea by the girl that she be allowed to see Hall at City Hospital "for just one minute" before going to the House of the Good Shepherd was denied.

PLEADS FOR A CHANCE

"I've spent a sleepless night and this is a day of horror," the girl sobbed. "This is the first time I have ever been in trouble, and as far as I know it is the first time Carmen ever did anything wrong. I can't understand it. He must have been driven to it.

"We were without food or money and couldn't pay our room rent. If they'd only give us a chance we'd get married and never get into such a mess again.

"For almost a year we've been trying to get steady work and have planned right along to be married, but we never could save enough really to get started. All I need is a job and I can take care of him until he is able to get back on his feet.

"I met him about two years ago when he was in the Marines, through my brother who knew him, and I have been keeping company with him ever since. He is a decent boy and was driven by desperation to do what he did.

KNOWS NO HOME

"Even now I can hardly believe he did what the police have told me."

Asked if she intended to return to her home in Milford the girl sobbed afresh and said:

"I have no home to go to except the one in the South End. My mother and dad separated some time ago and I have been on my own now for more than a couple of years. Mother and I don't know a real home."

The former marine entered the store in West Brookline st., South End, [illegible] and [illegible] Akashian, at [illegible] hand over his cash.

Instead Akashian [illegible] for the revolver [illegible] with which he [illegible] Akashian to the floor [illegible] a bread knife [illegible] off the floor stabbed [illegible] in the thigh [illegible] the neck [illegible] to be captured half a [illegible] away.

ASKS MERCY FOR GIRL

Hall will recover, doctors said today, but the wounds were serious.

Doctors told him when he was admitted yesterday that he might die, but he merely turned to his pleas for the girl.

In the room on Union Park the country girl who came to the city waited—hungry.

Hall failed to return but police soon arrived to uncover the story of hunger [illegible] wounds.

"Give the girl a break. It was all my fault. I couldn't see her starve," Hall repeated today in the hospital.

Wounded Bandit Pleads Mercy for Girl as She Sobs Out Desire to Help Him Make Good

Carman C. Hall, ex-marine, stretched on his couch of pain at City Hospital, told today how he "turned bandit" for love." "My sweetheart, Muriel Dunlap, 20, was hungry and I couldn't see her starve," he said, "so I took my gun and held up Akashian. He stabbed me four times—and here I am. But she is innocent: she didn't know what I was doing." Doctors said he would recover. Meanwhile the girl—as much in love as he—is held.

The holdup man who invaded the shop of Torcs Askashian on West Brookline st., learned that a knife is sometimes more useful than a gun. Carman C. Hall is in the City Hospital, wounded and under arrest as a result of a tussle with Askashian. Patrolman William Nason is examining the gun, while Sergt. Henry Bailey looks over the knife. Muriel Dunlap, shown in inset, was in Hall's room. (Other Pictures in Page 3.)

WOMAN SAW 3 IN JOYCE CASE

Newton police today found a woman whose [illegible] supports that of [illegible] Joyce [illegible] of [illegible] in a serious condition from stab wounds in Newton [illegible] Joyce [illegible] he was [illegible].

According to the police, search resulted in finding a woman resident of Newton Upper Falls who said she saw three men put a fourth [illegible].

[illegible] in good health and [illegible] the police she told [illegible] was found [illegible] within a short time.

If her story is correct, it [illegible] theory held by some [illegible] that Joyce [illegible].

Joyce at Newton Hospital was reported a little better today and resting comfortably. Capt. [illegible] said he would again try to question the patient although yesterday Joyce refused [illegible].

COMPARES KIN'S HOME WITH OWN

"My father has a housekeeper, possesses an automobile and enjoyed a six-weeks' vacation in Havana and Miami. He has a lovely home in Philadelphia.

"We have no maid in our Brookline apartment. My mother does the washing and we do the housework."

Youth Ruined by Prohibition in So. Africa, Says Nurse

Bootleg liquor in Johannesburg, South Africa, is known as [illegible] according to Miss Ruth C. Cowles of New Britain, Ct., a [illegible] nurse, who was a visitor in [illegible] yesterday. She [illegible] prohibition evils in that section.

"We have prohibition for non-Europeans, but not for Europeans in Johannesburg," she said. "As a result thousands of tons of yeast cakes are sold annually to these people by the persons who have prohibited making liquor.

"We have thousands of gallons of whiskey sold to non-Europeans by the Europeans who made the laws against it, and they are selling it to the boys and girls—and sending them straight to the devil.

"Every Monday morning, hundreds of Bantu women are driven to jail with their babies on their backs to serve sentences for brewing this illicit liquor.

"The women make the hooten, which is of chocolate color, pour it into tins and hide it in the ground. On Saturdays and Sundays you will find the ground oozing with it. The police have been there on their raids and tapped the ground with crowbars."

Miss Cowles told of women who put on an additional petticoat for every year of married life, women who shave their heads with glass or stone. She said she knew of babies given [illegible] names as Rain, Hail Stones and Motor Car.

Long Fight to Open Gas Station Ends

A dream of 15 years became a reality when the Newton board of aldermen granted the petition of Jacob Kagman for a permit to establish a gasoline station at 456 Watertown st., Newton. Two members voted against the petition.

Kagman made his first attempt to obtain the permit in 1917. His petitions were turned down [illegible] times.

ATLANTIC BANK NOW IN FIRST NATIONAL

The Atlantic National Bank today began operating as an integral part of the First National Bank of Boston, which at the close of business yesterday took over the assets and deposit liabilities of the other institution.

The First National Bank guarantees to pay in full all depositors of the Atlantic in both the commercial and savings departments.

Beginning with the opening of the doors this forenoon, depositors in the Atlantic could withdraw or deposit at the First National, using their same pass books or check books, and the First National is honoring all checks drawn on the Atlantic.

Boston financiers viewed the action of the First National as a real public service, hailing it as a major constructive action in the New England banking situation, which is exceptionally strong.

The First National Bank of Boston is one of the largest in the country. Its cash is more than twice the deposit liabilities of the Atlantic. Its liquid assets are nearly five times the deposit liabilities of the Atlantic.

A statement issued by the First National Bank lists its cash as $122,000, and government bonds more than $90,000,000. Deposits of the Atlantic are $65,000,000.

The Atlantic National Bank was in strictly solvent position, and, according to Boston bankers, no emergency affecting the whole of New England could affect the solvency of the First National.

President Frank C. Nichols of the Atlantic has accepted the offer of a vice-presidency of the First National.

ACID TEST FOR LOMASNEY

mittee. He did this because Mgr. Roche at a convention of the Catholic Federation held on the previous day, had denounced the proposed amendment, claiming it would make the state and its schools athiest, and intimating that the Catholic hierarchy was opposed to it.

"The debate began on Friday, July 9. At the suggestion of Coleman (George W.) of Boston, the committee conferred over the week-end and called in some outsiders, including President Lowell of Harvard and Episcopal Bishop William Lawrence.

"July 13, Chairman Curtis presented as the committee's unanimous report an amended draft of the Lomasney proposal, which met with general approval. Efforts to except from the operation of the law, the Institute of Technology, Worcester Polytechnic and other engineering and technical schools in which the state supported scholarships, were rejected.

Repudiate Speech

Catholics Disavow Position Taken by Cummings

"At this stage of the proceedings, Cummings (John W.) of Fall River, avowedly speaking only as a representative Catholic layman, made an eloquent and impassioned appeal to report the unanimous report of the committee and to submit no amendment to the people.

"He contended that the Catholic layman was not now taxed to support schools which he could not conscientiously use and that to open this matter to public discussion would scatter from Provincetown to Pittsfield brands of a fire that could not easily be extinguished.

"The speech was received in silence. It was the first time that personal feeling or religious motives had been injected into the discussion.

"The position taken by Cummings was promptly disavowed by all the Catholics of the committee on the Bill of Rights. August 22, the proposal was passed to be engrossed, 275 yeas and 22 nays. Only 9 of the 94 Catholic delegates voted against it. August 13, the convention submitted the amendment to the people."

WENTWORTH'S SAFE LOOTED

Tuition fees totalling $450 in cash and $300 in checks were stolen from a safe at Wentworth Institute, 550 Huntington ave., last night or early today.

Although the safe door had been sledged and pried open, police said there were several indications the robbery was an "inside job," committed by someone with a knowledge of the school interior and construction.

A rear window was broken to effect entrance. Cash of $180 in a filing cabinet was overlooked. Inspector Joseph McCue, fingerprint expert, said the burglar wore gloves and took plenty of time at his work.

PLAYGIRLS IN LOVE « A Serial About the New Modern Girl « By MAY CHRISTIE

"I CAN'T. I've got a heavy date myself—with my budding Michael Angelo in the Village," said Zella.

"For dinner?"

"Yep. I was going to take you, too. But here's where you can do a little Christian act and cheer up Genevieve".

"On the principle that misery loves company, I suppose?"

"She really wants you, Judith. She came into the shop today—I forgot to tell you—she wanted your 'phone number at the bank."

"It's in the directory. She could have called me up. What's the matter, anyhow, with Genevieve?"

"Trouble with her sweetheart, I suppose. By golly, what females don't go through. You'll never catch me falling in love!"

"Don't tempt fate, Zella, with such sweeping statements!"

"Well, run along and slip into another dress. Genevieve's got a cute apartment. She'll give you a good dinner. I'll drop you in my taxicab."

Zella was relieved that Judith wasn't to be alone tonight. She'd been worrying about Judith.

JUDITH MAKES A CALL

Genevieve was extended languidly on a chaise longue when Judith—the door being ajar and no one answering her ring—walked into living room of the apartment.

Genevieve was wearing a really beautiful sea-green negligee that showed every curve of her voluptuous figure.

"I'm awfully glad you came, Judith. Take off your wrap and make yourself at home. When I've summoned a little energy—for this spring weather is exhausting—I'm going to mix you a cocktail."

"Oh, not on my account," Judith said quickly.

The sensitive Judith flushed under her hostess' green gaze that for all its languish was penetrating.

"She knows how I feel about Loranda and Barry . . .! She just asked me here because misery loves company!"

So thought Judith.

But she was not entirely right. There was a definite motive in Genevieve's invitation that was to be unfolded later.

DRANK STRAIGHT GIN

She drank straight gin herself, she said. There was a curious look in Genevieve's eyes . . . a twitching of the hands that disconcerted her young visitor.

Genevieve went out to the kitchenette and when she came back with the cocktail shaker she appeared to be a different being.

An excellent little dinner for two was sent up from the restaurant in the building.

Honeydew melon . . . bouillon cup . . . delicious young salmon served with sliced cucumber, and mayonnaise . . . tiny new potatoes . . . green peas and asparagus.

Genevieve made Turkish coffee with a spirit lamp under a glass container on a copper base. She added the requisite drops of rose water and handed an ornate little demi-tasse to Judith.

"How clever of you!" exclaimed the latter.

Genevieve shrugged. "Oh, I learnt it last year, when I was in Constantinople with Cliss."

She added, seeing Judith's surprised expression, "We were on a Mauretania cruise."

She poured Judith some benedictine from a green bottle into a frosted glass that was no bigger than a thimble.

"From Cliss' stock. He keeps the real thing."

It seemed that Genevieve couldn't keep Cliss' name out of the conversation for any length of time.

"She loves him. She's unhappy. Poor Genevieve!" thought Judith sympathetically.

FELL INTO A DREAM

Genevieve seemed to have fallen into a dream. Judith looked round the living room.

It was furnished in expensive taste. There were rich, faded rugs on the floor, of oriental design. An enormous Italian desk that was nearly as big as a Victorian wardrobe stood against one wall. It was open, displaying endless little drawers with gilded pictures on each one.

A delicately wrought tapestry that was at least fourteen feet in width, and six feet high, covered another side of the room. It was a forest scene, with impossibly-shaped young people in the foreground, making love and playing foreign instruments, and startled-looking deer in the background.

There was a long refectory table painted in faded green design . . . and a prie-dieu . . . and two wrought-iron Italian chairs, saddle-backed, with curved seats of crimson velvet.

The whole effect was rich but at the same time a little faded.

"As though Genevieve had known better days," thought Judith.

GENEVIEVE ALONE

Even if it was Genevieve's own fault it was cruel.

"A woman who throws her bonnet over the windmill is nothing but a damn fool——" Judith had read somewhere.

Suddenly Genevieve seemed once again to come to life. She poured her guest a second glass of benedictine, and herself drank with her.

"Judith, I want you to do me a tiny favor."

"Why, of course, Genevieve, if I can."

"I want you to hand in a note—at the top floor of this building—I'll write it."

Genevieve got up from the couch with a slinky, graceful movement, and went over to the enormous secretary-desk.

She wrote a few lines on several sheets of paper. Each time she tore them up.

Finally she blotted one—read it several times through—stuck it in an envelope, gummed it and handed it to Judith.

JUDITH MYSTIFIED

"Will you go up to the top floor with this?"

There was no name on the envelope.

"That isn't necessary," Genevieve said testily, as though she had read Judith's thought. "There's but one apartment there. You've only got to knock on the door and hand this to the butler. Tell him it's for his master."

"Very well." Judith rose, rather mystified.

"Slip on your coat and hat. Don't take the elevator. It's only three flights higher. Go up the back stairs. I don't want the gossiping servants to know my private business," Genevieve said.

The Marry-Go-Round; Hope Chest

By HELEN ROWLAND

THE marrying month is at hand when a few tips for future brides may not come amiss. Getting married, like winning a presidential election, requires skill, personality, tact, hard work and a lot of luck.

* * *

But the real test comes after the campaign, when you have to hold onto your "platform" with one hand and onto your common sense with the other.

THE MARRYING-MONTH IS AT HAND
"CAN I DODGE JUNE?"
5-4

in her hope chest and her memory.

A brilliant man, a handsome man or a rich man may make a charming lover, but when it comes to selecting a husband, a BUSY man is the best bet. A man who works so hard from 9 to 5 that he has no time to gad about from 9 to 12 p. m. won't wreck your beauty sleep.

* * *

The vital thing to consider is not whether or not you can get along with a man's salary, but whether or not you can get along with the MAN.

The qualities that charm a man in a sweetheart no more resemble those that he will want and demand in a wife than a gilt paper Valentine resembles a cookbook or a hymnal.

* * *

Sometimes you are going to be adored like a plaster saint, sometimes hated like an alarm clock and sometimes dodged like a bill collector, but seldom treated like a normal human being. So have your "feelings" insulated and tie your "nerves" up.

ADORED LIKE A PLASTER SAINT JANE

Beware the demon of suspicion. A man is not out lunching with his blonde stenographer EVERY time he leaves word that he's in conference. Sometimes he's in conference.

Remember that marriage is a PARTNERSHIP, especially these strenuous days; and that does not mean that one-half the firms should work like a dog in order that the other half may live like a prize Pekingese. Marriage is a whole-time job—with no holidays.

The Beauty Box

HANDS must move beautifully if they are to be admired. No tense muscles, no nervous, jerky motions. The secret of pretty gestures is the flexible wrist. Hold fingers outspread, turn the hand left and right, keeping the wrist rigid. Send the hands in a circle. Lift and lower them as if waving bye-bye to the people. Clasp the right wrist with the left hand and work the fingers like so many little hammers. Good exercises these.

Daily True Story

The Road to Fame

THE FOOTLIGHTS team of Rosita and Riggins was being dissolved, and Joe Riggins felt blue about it.

[illegible] he reflected bitterly. If he and Rosita hadn't been Ellen [illegible] dancing [illegible] which [illegible] would have been [illegible].

But they had gone [illegible] Broadway [illegible] Hollywood had [illegible].

It was [illegible] picture which had been [illegible] in Westchester [illegible] to welcome him [illegible] young [illegible] to meet him.

GETTING SENTIMENTAL

"Brace up, man, you're getting sentimental!" he muttered roughly to himself. "Turn the spot off your own mug and go give the girl a cheerful sendoff."

He knocked on Ellen's dressing room door and entered grinning broadly.

"How's Miss [illegible]?" he greeted. "[illegible] go west and knock their eyes out?"

She noticed [illegible] pointing to a pile of bags.

"Yes, I'm ready, Joe," she said. "You don't mind my going, do you? I hate breaking up the act like this, and I'll miss you, really I will."

"Of course I don't mind," he said heartily. "I'm glad you got the chance. You'll put Garbo and Dietrich in the discard."

[illegible] she demanded [illegible] I'm going to [illegible]."

Joe's smile did not change. He had [illegible] between a [illegible] queen and an uncelebrated vaudeville actor. But he replied stoutly: "Sure I will, Ellen."

[illegible] this day Joe takes no credit to himself for the way in which he came to keep his promise to Ellen. He simply lays it to luck. But Mr. Epstein, Broadway booking agent, has a different [illegible].

"You remember that Rosita and Riggins team I had?" he asks. "Joe Riggins and a nifty brunette who quit him to go to Hollywood on one of those short-term contracts?

"Well, Joe went around in circles for weeks after the dame left him. He'd been feeding her the good lines and he couldn't find another skirt to hold up that end of the act. So what does he do?

"He does what he should have done long before—he works out a monologue and improves that dumb manner of his until it's killing. For once he gets all the laughs from his own jokes. And is he a riot? I had him at the Palace in three weeks."

NOBODY WORRIES

A [illegible] Mr. Epstein's face [illegible].

"And what happens next?" he [illegible]. "Why this Gus Meyer from Hollywood that would take knitting needles from his own mother's work basket slips in one night and gets hold of my man. [illegible] when my contract is expiring.

"Go to Hollywood and ask about Rosita and chances are the person who [illegible] address will stare back [illegible]."

That's past history and nobody worries about it least of all the former Rosita. She is happy in another [illegible]. She waits for Joe Riggins each afternoon on the steps of a Hollywood cottage, and there's one young [illegible] keep the watch with her, already.

BOB BROWN BRAVES' MOUND CHOICE AGAINST PHILS

FANNING

—With GEORGE UNDERWOOD—

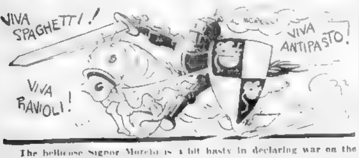
Let's Compromise on N. E. Boiled Dinner

The war between noble Corned Beef and Cabbage and the regal Spaghetti is on! Armed cap a pie and singing the Hymn to Garibaldi and shouting "Viva Mussolini!" in the same breath, Al Morelli comes galloping down on Red Mike and Violets and vows to make Harry Kelly eat those cruel words he spoke against Antipasto, Pasta e Fagioli, Spaghetti a la Vesuvio, not to say anything of Scaloppine con Peperoni, Scaloppine con Funghi and other Italian eatables. "Where does that Irisher, Harry Kelly, who trains Johnny Indrisano, get off to knock out noble Spaghetti?" challenges the sturdy Signor of Revere, belching smoke and spouting flame. "I train on spaghetti and wash it down with Chianti or plain 'Red.' There's certainly nothing the matter with my strength, endurance, speed, as Champion Henri DeGlane certainly will find out when I get him on the mat at the Arena tomorrow night. In onions there is strength. Kelly can have his corned beef and cabbage. Spaghetti a la Marinara, Spaghetti a la Calabrese is good enough for me. And Johnny Indrisano has done pretty well on it, too. He's got to the top of the heap on it. He doesn't need any of Harry Kelly's Red Mike and Violets to win the welterweight championship. All he needs is to get in the same ring with Champion Jackie Fields. Viva Spaghetti! Viva Antipasto! Viva Ravioli!"



'VIVA SPAGHETTI!'
MORELLI
VIVA ANTIPASTO!
VIVA RAVIOLI!

The bellicose Signor Morelli is a bit hasty in declaring war on the Kellys and on Red Mike and Violets. The Signor of Revere misconstrued a little statement in Fanning yesterday, where we quoted Kelly as saying that until Kelly took over his training Johnny Indrisano had no idea on proper training diet, as a savage Celtic attack on noble Italian menus. But far be it from Kelly to attack the noble Italian bill-of-fares. He likes to inhale spaghetti himself too well for that. But being Irish, and therein born with a chip on his shoulder, Harry had quite a time restraining himself and calmly putting forth his attitude on noble Italian menus. The descendant of Irish kings feared that Signor Morelli might consider his explanation in the nature of an apology. And bedad, when a Kelly apologizes to a Morelli, Ireland isn't Ireland any more.

"How does Morelli get that way?" queriously queries Mister Kelly. "Sure not for one minute would I attempt to compare a bowl of spaghetti, even cooked by the Queen of Italy herself, with a dish of steaming corned beef and cabbage surrounded with praties from the good woman's kettle. But I ain't knockin' spaghetti or Italian meals. Bedad, I like them too well myself. Every once in a while the Red Mike and Violets begin to lose their fragrance—and you get too much of a good thing, even of corned beef and cabbage—I hie myself to an Italian restaurant and wrap myself around a few yards of spaghetti, or e'en perhaps inhale a few chunks of ravioli. You see, after a meal of spaghetti, I appreciate just how good corned beef and cabbage really are.

"But me knock spaghetti or Italian menus?" continued the King of Bowdoin Square. "Not me! I never said anything reflecting on the good Italian meals Mrs. Indrisano of the well known Noddle Island Indrisanos has been setting before Johnny. To be sure I've ordered Johnny to ease down a bit on spaghetti and not to use too much olive oil in the dressing he sprinkles on his antipasto or cicoria insalata, the high falutin' name Signor Morelli gives plain dandelion salad. Spaghetti is fattening, you know, and so is olive oil. But I don't blame Morelli's thickness on it! Not me!

"Now if I was training Signor Morelli I would let him have all the spaghetti and ravioli he wants and he could drown his anti-pasto in olive oil, for all I cared. Morelli doesn't have to make weight for De Glane, you know. He can go on the mat against the Parley-Voo as big as an elephant and as heavy as a hippopotamus. In fact, the more beef he packs on the better his chances of taking the world's title from De Glane. But my boy Indrisano's big training problem, you know, is making weight. If he fights Fields for the title he must make 147 pounds. He not only must tip the beam at 147 pounds or under, but must do it and be strong. He can't make the championship weight and continue to shovel in all the spaghetti Ma Indrisano puts in front of him.

"Now as an Irishman and a gentleman, I've tried to put the plain facts in front of Morelli," concluded Kelly as he opened up the latest edition of the Dublin Freeman as a gentle hint that his time was precious and the interview was at an end. "But not for one minute must he consider this explanation as an apology. If he wants to start a war between corned beef and cabbage and spaghetti, let it begin right here. I'll fight him Queensberry or jiu jitsu, or with swords at 40 paces, or pistols in the dark. Let it never be said that a Kelly ran away from a Morelli! A Kelly doesn't run away from them. He runs at them!"

A ROYAL FLUSH!
"LOOKS LIKE THEY'RE MAKIN' THE BUMS FLATTER THIS YEAR!"
JIM DUNCAN
GRAND DUKE

From Paris the other day came a cablegram that Jim Duncan seriously had been wounded by an accidental gun shot. Sports followers all will recall Jim as former national champion and record holder with the discus. A few of us will remember him as the fellow who once almost beaned the Grand Duke Alexis. In fact once almost caved in the conk of the Grand Duke of All the Russias! And thereby hangs a tale.

Following the Olympic games at Stockholm in 1912, Duncan and a band of Yankee athletes went on a little junketing tour into Russia. They were royally entertained in St. Petersburg, or whatever they called the big Russian metropolis, which has been called more names than James Michael Curley called Al Smith. At a banquet the night before the meet in St. Petersburg Duncan was introduced to the bottled dynamite called vodka. Jim apparently mistook it for soda water. Vodka hangs on. When Jim got into his athletic togs for the competitions the next afternoon he still had a beautiful hangover. But Jim had been billed to throw the discus. And throw the discus he would or bust!

Taking the missile in his big paw, Jim staggered into the circle. There wasn't any need of his making the "turn," for his head was spinning, anyway. Jim whirled around. Not once, but several times like a whirling dervish, and let the saucer go. His distance was all right but his aim was rotten. The missile left at an angle and sailed like a striking hawk straight and his whole entourage broke into a most plebian scramble. The Grand Duke tried to get away from there so fast, in fact, that he got all tangled up with his beard. The discus missed him by a margin as slender as one of his whiskers. A millionth of an inch difference and Jim Duncan might have taken on a long hike to Siberia!

DERBY HORSES READY FOR BARRIER

Louisville, Ky., May 4 (INS)—Derby horses reached the peak of their training schedules today.

Especial interest today attached to the initial distance runs of the Eastern contingent, Universe, Economic, Stepenfetchit and Tick On. Brother Joe and Burgoo King of the Western entrants were primed for stiff [illegible] and [illegible] were ready to prove their right to start in the classic.

Adobe Post, Prince Hotspur and Cold Check today basked in augmented en[illegible] for their sensational showing in yesterday's preparation purse, in which they finished one-two-three.

The winner's time of 1.39 4-5 for the mile was considered excellent qualification for the Derby and his owner, C. H. "Pat" Knebel-Kamp, reversed himself and said the gelding [illegible] would face the barrier Saturday. Previously he had announced the horse would not [illegible].

[illegible] Check's fast finish cheered his backers. Both he and Adobe Post came from far back, the Knebelkamp gelding breaking from the [illegible] last in the field of 11. Cold Check closed with a dizzying [illegible] of speed in the stretch.

Prince Hotspur and Sazerac showed they [illegible] Saturday by working out an extra eighth in 1.54 1-5, then pulling up at the quarter.

Our Fancy, after setting the early pace, faded and today was regarded as below Derby calibre. Indian Runner, after faring poorly in the East, stayed with the leaders here yesterday and gave evidence of Derby stamina.

Indian Runner would shave favoritism with Burgoo King and Brother Joe if Saturday's track should be muddy. The Bradley pair astonished railbirds Saturday by running a mile and a quarter in 2.11 in heavy going. Yesterday they warmed up for another full Derby distance dash today by breezing a half-mile, head and head, in 48 3-5s.

RED STILL ON SPREE

One of the reasons why the Braves are leading the league—BOB WORTHINGTON. A tornadic triple and a screaming single bounced off his bludgeon yesterday. In one week Robert the Red jumped from among the .220 hitters to high up among the .300 clouters. He not only has been hitting hard, but has been hitting timely, driving a whole flock of runners home.

Red Worthington's Bat Gives Braves Punch

By GEORGE UNDERWOOD

Bill McKechnie's rampaging Braves, "outsiders in the Winter Book," still are out front blazing the trail in the National League and throwing dirt in the faces of Giants, Cubs and other red hot favorites.

Upon what meat doth this our Caesar feed that he hath grown so great? One of the reddest, juiciest hunks of meat that have fattened the winning percentage of the Braves is your old pal, Red Worthington. Boy oh boy, how Robert the Red is crucifying the old apple!

A fortnight ago Worthington was low down among the .200 hitters. Now look at him—'way up high among the .300 clouters and still hammering the horsehide all over the valuable real estate. Yesterday he fattened his average with a triple and single. All pitchers are looking alike to him.

This red-headed, freckled-faced Irish-American lad from California isn't only a flash. That batting spree of his isn't only a temporary one. His record indicates he will remain one of the year's leading sluggers.

Last year, his first year under the Big Tent, Robert the Red batted more than .300. He came to the Braves from the Rochester Internationals, where he was the league's second greatest hitter. He came up to Rochester from one of the other Cardinal farms when McKechnie was there, and the now pilot of the Braves had plenty of time to look Worthington over. He thought so much of him that you will recall he induced President Fuchs to pay a cool $30,000 for him.

Worthington is what the ball players call a "wrist" hitter. He takes a most deceiving cut at the ball. Robert the Red hits to all fields. Opposing pitchers say he is one of the most deceiving hitters in the game. They feed him a ball designed to be hit to the left side of the diamond and he rams it over to right.

With his one-year's seasoning in the big leagues this apparently is Robert the Red's year to howl. He is going to continue to clout the old apple and his big bat is going to play a big part in winning ball games for the Braves.

What the Stars Did

By the Associated Press

Cradle of Yale Sports Rocked by Building Wreckers

New Haven, Conn., May 4 (AP)—The old Yale gymnasium, training center for Eli athletes during the last four decades, entered the class of has beens as wreckers began tearing it down.

It will be replaced in the Fall by the new $4,000,000 Payne Whitney Gymnasium.

To nearly the very end the old gym enjoyed a reputation as the home of new ideas and new records, several of which were posted during the recent national senior A. A. U. swimming championships.

VENZKE WILL RUN IN N.Y. CURB MEET

New York, May 4 (AP)—Gene Venzke, holder of the mile record indoors, will make his first outdoor start in preparation for the Olympics in the New York Curb Exchange A. A. meet at Lewiston Stadium, May 19.

Venzke's signed entry blank has been received for the 1000 yard race, a special event in which he will meet George Bullwinkle, former City College star, Bill McKniff, of the University of Pennsylvania, and probably Frank Nordell or James Maloney, of the New York University squad.

The meet will be held at night under the floodlights. Venzke has not run since the K. of C. meet in Madison Square Garden, Feb. 27, where he set a new world's indoor record of 3:53 2-5 for the 1500 meters. His indoor mile mark is 4.10. He was undefeated during the indoor season.

Frenchy Belanger to Attempt Comeback

Toronto, May 4 (AP)—Albert (Frenchy) Belanger, one of the best of the flyweights a few years ago, is to attempt a come-back in the ring as a bantamweight.

As with so many ring warriors the combination of easy money and bright lights got Frenchy and he finally became little more than a good preliminary boy. Six months ago he disappeared into the north woods and joined a lumber camp. He has come back, tanned, heavier, well muscled, and started workouts in a local gymnasium.

DE GLANE READY FOR MORELLI

Henri DeGlane, world's heavyweight wrestling champion, says he doesn't look for any pink tea party when he defends his title against Al Morelli, former Boston College star, at a Paul Bowser show at the Arena tomorrow night.

"It is the duty of a champion to follow the records of all possible challengers," said DeGlane today. "I was tipped off about Morelli more than a year ago.

"I first gave him serious attention when he held Gus Sonnenberg and Charley Strack to draws. When he licked Marin Plestin, Dan Koloff and McGill, I decided I would have to give him a match.

"I readily consented to the bout when offered it by Bowser. I felt it would be best to knock Morelli off before he improves too much. I know I have a tough match on my hands, but I am confident I shall win."

Poor Showing Fails to Worry Vines

New York, May 4 (AP)—Ellsworth Vines' inconsistent play apparently is worrying everybody but the national singles tennis champion.

"I would rather be playing poorly now than be burned out two months from now," he explains. "I have a hard campaign ahead and I don't want to wear myself out this early. Give me time."

Babe Ruth, Not Even Sick, Denies That He's Dead

The annual demise of Babe Ruth took place in New York yesterday. From mouth to mouth a report was circulated that the Babe had been killed in an automobile accident.

In a telephone talk from Washington the Babe personally got in a denial.

"Were you in an accident?" he was asked.

"Nope," said the Babe.

"Are you dead?"

"No."

It is hardly likely that the Babe was fibbing.

Diamond Dust

—By JOE CASHMAN

Art Shires joins the Braves in Philadelphia today. He won't be used while the team keeps winning without him but he announced on his departure from Boston that he was completely recovered, had never felt better and could step into the lineup this afternoon if necessary.

After losing three games in a row to the Senators, and dropping from first to fourth place, the Yankees can be counted upon to start talking trade immediately with any and every club that has a good pitcher to offer.

The veteran Herb Pennock came closer to stopping the Solons than any of the other McCarthy hurlers but the Capital crew eventually won out 5 to 4 in the final contest to make a clean sweep of the engagement.

The win increased the Senators' lead to two games over Cleveland's Indians, who were stopped by the Browns, 11 to 8, after winning nine games in a row.

And the defeat dropped the Yanks below the Detroit Tigers, who were rained out in Chicago.

The Cards have started to climb. In the cellar at the start of the week, they are now in fifth, only one-half game back of the fourth-place Reds, whom they licked again, 9 to 0. Dizzy Dean did the pitching for the champs and kept eight hits well scattered.

FATHER TO AID DICK GLENDON

New York, May 4—"Old Dick" Glendon, master rowing coach, who retired as head of the Navy crew coaching staff last year, will assist his son, "Young Dick" Glendon, in coaching the Columbia crews for the Poughkeepsie regatta.

Young Dick, Lions' head coach, is burdened with all the teaching of crew. His brother, Hubert, Dick's aide, has scarlet fever and won't be able to coach for some time.

Vermont Nine to Play 16 Games

Burlington, Vt., May 4 (AP)—Dartmouth, Harvard and New Hampshire have been given places on the University of Vermont's 1932-33 basketball schedule.

Vermont will play 16 games as follows: Dec. 7, Alumni; 10, McGill; 14, Dartmouth at Hanover, N. H.; 16, St. Lawrence; Jan. 7, Boston University; 10, St. Michaels at Winooski; 13, New Hampshire at Durham, N. H.; 14, Harvard at Cambridge, Mass. Feb. 1, St. Michaels, 9, Norwich at Northfield, 10, Springfield at Springfield, Mass., 11, Massachusetts State at Amherst, Mass., 17, Middlebury at Middlebury, 22, Union, 24, Norwich, 28, Middlebury.

Shoots Hole in One Then Breaks Wrist

Chicago, May 4 (INS)—Memories of a hole-in-one are small consolation for a golfer's broken wrist, Charles Patasnik complained today. In the clubhouse of a local course he was telling his friends how he had scored a 205 yard ace. As he stepped out of the building for another round he slipped and fractured his wrist.

Twenty Grand in for a Year's Rest

Lexington, Ky., May 4 (AP)—Twenty Grand, last year's 3-year-old champion and Kentucky Derby winner, today looked forward to a year's rest at Mrs. Payne Whitney's Greentree Farm near here. He arrived yesterday, after having been thrown out of training because of an old injury.

TRIBE HOLDS FRONT PLACE IN N. L. RACE

Philadelphia, Pa., May 4—Rookies Bob Brown of the Braves and Roy Hansen of the Phils, who were picked but failed to pitch the second game of the series, are virtually sure to start in the third, final and rubber tilt between the league-leading invaders and the third-place locals this afternoon.

After the contest the rivals will begin their first tour of the West, the Warriors going to Cincinnati and the Shottonmen to Pittsburgh.

Both have done much better to date than even their most optimistic followers expected. If they can hold their own out on the trails, they'll have to be regarded as serious pennant contenders.

Last season, they fought it out for sixth place, the Phils grabbing off the berth on the last day of the season. In this series, at any rate, both have looked like first-division certainties.

Braves Even Series Count With Victory

The Phils walked off with the opener in easy fashion but the Braves evened the count by winning the second without much trouble, 9 to 4.

It was a close game for three innings, the visitors scoring once in each of the frames and the natives tying the count by putting over three markers in the third.

In the fourth, however, the Tribe counted four times to clinch the verdict and added two more for good measure in the eighth, while the Phils were held to scoring one more run in the fifth.

Seibold was relieved by Zachary with the bases loaded in the fifth. The veteran southpaw escaped from that tight spot and then settled down to hurl scoreless ball to the finish.

20 to 1 Shot Wins Chester Cup Classic

Chester, Eng., May 4 (AP)—Mrs. C. B. Robinson's Bonny Bright Eyes, by Trespasser out of Sparkling Eyes, today won the Chester cup from Montague Evans' Blue Vision. The Aga Khan's Ut Majeur was third. Seventeen ran.

Strangely, John [illegible] and Jerry Travers, who are [illegible] unbeatable on their home course, were the only pair which did not make a clean sweep.

Emory P. Stratton flipped around Commonwealth in 72 blows but even such a pace did not prevent Everett Fogg from helping the former Brae Burnite on three holes.

After he and his partner, Rod Brown, had lost the outward nine to Francis Ouimet and Jim Hollis at The Country Club, Parker W. Whittemore raced home in 33 to win two points for the Clyde Park team.

Whittemore and Brown had a better ball of 70 but that was one stroke more than the round that B. W. Bunny Estabrook and Walter A. Carl [illegible] at Jesse P. Guilford and B. Donnelly, Jr., and the Woodlanders were on the short end of a 2 [illegible] to [illegible] match.

Apparently, the 11th hour shift of partners did not work out to the advantage of Woodland. At the last minute, it was decided to break up the Moore and Donnelly combination assigning the former to Hal Kaler and the latter to Jesse Guilford.

Although Brae Burn is leading the Boston Four-Ball League it has only a two and one-half point advantage over Commonwealth and The Country Club.

About a dozen members of the South Shore C. C. and Waltham C. C. and a couple of ringers will hold an informal match at Hingham on Friday. During a 19th hole controversy the South Shore accepted a challenge from Waltham as a result divots will be flying all over Plymouth County on Friday.

Ted Bishop, Wildwood, should be one of the big winners in N. E. P. G. O. competition this season. Bishop has a bag full of golf shots and a fine competitive temperament.

Jack Russell and Danny MacFayden of the Red Sox are scheduled to play at the Blue Hill Country Club today, which is an open date for Shono Collins' tribe.

Due to the threatened attack of water on the knee, Babe Ruth may be forced to cancel his driving contest against Jesse Guilford, which was to have been held at Woodland next month.

Sox Idle Today; Browns Next Fenway Invaders

By JOE CASHMAN

Fenway Park, closed this afternoon, will witness the opening of the first Western invasion of the season tomorrow, when the St. Louis Browns arrive for a four-game series with our luckless Red Sox.

After the Mound City outfit [illegible] come the Detroit Tigers for three contests, the Cleveland Indians for three more and finally the Chicago White Sox for a quartet of engagements.

The Collinsmen await the coming of these four entries from the wide open spaces, firm in the belief that on the morrow they will begin a victory surge which will carry them up or close to the first division before the invasion is over.

They had hoped to do better against their strong Eastern rivals [illegible] they realize there's nothing [illegible] can do about it now. So they have forgotten the past and started to figure how many games they must annex in the next fortnight to draw a safe distance away from the basement.

That they may not be able to do any [illegible] at the expense of the Western clubs doesn't enter [illegible] their minds [illegible] which is the proper attitude.

Red Sox Face Real Chance to Climb

The Sox, knowing [illegible] find they are one game back of the seventh-place White Sox and 3 games behind the fifth-place Browns at this writing.

All of which means that if they can gain the edge in each of the coming four series at the Fens they should reach the top of the second division at least [illegible] of the visiting clubs [illegible] in a plenty of trouble as well [illegible] feats in Washington, New York and Philadelphia.

Last season, the Sox beat out the White Sox and Tigers. This year Mgr. John Collins feels his outfit is strong enough again to top those two clubs as well as the Browns and possibly the Indians.

Joe Jackson Recalls Days of Batting Glory

Savannah, Ga., May 4 (AP)—Joe Jackson balanced a 21 year old bat in his hands [illegible] as he stared through a window of his pressing shop here and wondered how many hits he could have got with the old bludgeon if the majors had used the lively ball when he was the shoeless wonder of the Chicago White Sox.

[illegible]

"Some stick, eh?" he said as he looked at the old war club. "It's 21 years old. The wood was given me by a friend near Greenville, S. C., and the bat was made to order."

[illegible]

"I wonder how many hits I could have got if I had been hitting the lively ball?" he said. "I don't see how they could have got us out."

"Sometimes I wonder what the hitters of my day would have done with the lively ball of today," the veteran continued. "They hit a ball then that was like a brick compared to today's ball, and how they could sock."

[illegible]

He was the only fellow I ever tried to convert to the style who jumped on to the idea in a minute," he said.

"He was a young fellow named Babe Ruth who wanted to learn."

Jackson Thinks Grove a Wonder Pitcher

Joe has a great idea [illegible] for modern pitchers.

"This fellow Grove must be a wonder and so must some of the others, but I still believe the old time hitters could have knocked these pitchers out of the lot," he mumbled.

Making his first appearance of the season, Warren patrolled right field. The eyes of all spectators were centered on him. For nine innings he astounded them with a display of what love of the game and a dogged courage can accomplish in eight months of painstaking training.

[illegible]

After the game he said:

"I had a fine day and a fine time. I hope to break into more games before the season's over."

COON DIES, BUT SHOW GOES ON

Chicago, April 4 (AP)—Death came today to Carlton Coon, 38, and ended a 13-year partnership with Joe Sanders in the famous Coon-Sanders orchestra—a partnership born of a music store meeting of two World War soldiers and never broken in a rapid climb to national radio and vaudeville fame.

Coon died this morning in Henrotin Hospital of blood poisoning caused by an abscess in the jaw, which developed last month.

Meantime, in keeping with all traditions of the show world, his friend and associate, Sanders, announced the orchestra would continue with its engagement here under the name of Coon-Sanders.

"Coonie would want it that way," he said.

Theirs was the first radio club in history and when chain broadcasts began the "Nighthawks" played their first chain program over the N. B. C. network from Chicago in 1929.

MYSTERY VEILS EGAN KIDNAPING

San Francisco, May 4 (AP)—Mystery today shrouded the disappearance of Frank J. Egan, San Francisco public defender. He vanished Monday night after Charles Dullea, captain of detectives, had received a telephone call, supposedly from Egan, saying:

"These men have got me, captain."

Deputy Coroner Jane Walsh revealed Egan had been named chief beneficiary in the will of Mrs. Jessie Hughes, widow, whose body was found in a street gutter several days ago.

Pig Iron Output Is at a New Low

New York, May 4 (AP)—Pig iron production touched a new low point in April, the daily rate of 28,430 tons being not far from the minimum output of 1921, which was 27,889 tons a day, Iron Age said today.

April total of 852,897 tons compared with 967,235 tons in the preceding month and 2,019,529 tons in April last year.

More Freight Cars Ready for Service

Class I railroads on April 1 had 209,272 freight cars in need of repair or 9.7 per cent of the number on line, according to the car service division of the American Railway Association.

This was an increase of 2811 cars above the number in need of repair on March 1, at which time there were 206,461 or 9.6 per cent.

Financial Market News

—STATE ST.— Hears:

That the lack of anything tangible on which to base a rally prevents the list from moving up, even though it plainly indicates a normal resistance level has been reached. Consequently there is nothing to do but cling to a sideline position pending the outcome of congressional budget balancing activities.

Starting Revival

It has long been held by competent observers that a [illegible] loan is the sure method of inducing revival. In this column it has been pointed out that the credit provisions for the extension of credit through the [illegible] act are incomplete. The [illegible] of new credits in the banks is not [illegible] A demand for [illegible] must be created.

A recent [illegible] statistical service calls for governmental action. It specifically asks for a public works program. It points out the reduction of one-third in the national debt in the last 13 years. It shows how part of this reduction could be replaced and cared for out of [illegible] in the good years most certain to come. It calls for legislative action to restore p[illegible]

Boardroom Briefs

In the final analysis a definite business-like program which is intended to start things moving will demand respect and foster the belief it is well to nourish new enterprises immediately . . . Finally it must be remembered that it will not take long for money spent for public works to find its way to private enterprise through the spending of wages and purchase of materials.

Selling of the dollar on news that the Goldsborough bill passed the House is a bit extreme . . . If foreign money centers examined the recent action of the Federal Reserve they would soon discover nothing not contemplated at present is asked for in the bill . . . Despite the selling of Sears, good scale buying is reported from Chicago.

Odds and Ends

The weakness of Western Union furnishes a good example of what happens to a faltering industry when further burdens in the form of a tax are added . . . Liquidation of Nash, United Fruit and J. C. Penney is thought to represent the last of a big loan . . . Penney paying $2.40 and earning it, looks particularly cheap, but few can run the risks of buying on liquidation.

The financial district has crossed the steel and motor shares off the book of likely bull market leaders . . . Not that these two will fail to get their fair share of business . . . Rather is it thought they are overbuilt and it may require five or ten years for consumption to catch up . . . The same is said of construction and building material companies.

METHODS ONE COMPANY USED TO GET AHEAD

—By B. C. Forbes—

BY SUBSTANTIALLY increasing advertising expenditures in newspapers and magazines, by increasing expenditures on research and experimental work, by operating the five-day-week in laboratories and offices without reduction of pay and by a sales promotion co-operative (profit-sharing) plan, one company has succeeded in increasing its dividend—E. R. Squibb & Sons, manufacturing chemists.

Do you know of any company that has come anywhere near matching such a record merely by cutting and cutting and cutting?

Enterprises that have done best, in almost every instance, are those that didn't weakly resign themselves to being licked, but redoubled their aggressiveness.

Progress in Kansas City

Lou E. Holland, Kansas City, Mo., sends "a composite drawing representing 212 buildings, none of which existed in 1928. They cost $52,000,000, not including buildings costing $25,000 or less, of which there are a very large number. We are feeling pretty good about this."

More Gold Mining Proposed

"As gold is the basis of the circulation of the world and as everything is built on that foundation, the increased production of gold throughout the world would be of paramount importance. The world produces about $440,000,000 of gold. I do believe that if a bonus of 15 per cent or 20 per cent be given by this government and other governments for the mining of gold that possibly in five years the production could almost be doubled—and you know what that would mean to the prosperity and happiness of the people.

"The cost to the different governments would be very small, would be paid to the citizens of the respective governments, would increase gold mining to a great extent, employ more people, make the use of machinery more urgent—in fact, would bring about a basis and a hope which is so sorely needed at present in this troubled world."

Isn't this suggestion sounder than most of the many now being aired?

People Continue to Buy

People are still buying orders. The Aeolian-Skinner Organ Company sends the cheering news that unfilled orders on hand have increased substantially and that employment has been increased 10 per cent.

Striving for Economic Suicide

The wages of stock owners are being drastically reduced. Last month there were only 24 improved dividend announcements, contrasted with 192 unfavorable announcements. For the first third of this year, cheerful dividend declarations have totaled only 167, against 543 in 1930, and 601 in the first four months of 1929. Unfavorable announcements have reached 817, compared with 611 a year ago, 186 in 1930, and 37 in 1929.

When the Pennsylvania Railroad has to defer dividend action for the first time in 85 years, surely we must be nearing the nadir of th economic slump. In view of the deplorable backbonelessness and hysteria exhibited, however, no mortal can foretell what may or may not happen. America lately has done its utmost to commit financial and economic suicide.

One of the most comforting passages in the Bible is, "This too, will pass." It is more than time depression were given a nationwide push to accelerate its passing.

BILL AFFECTS BOND MARKET

New York, May 4—Some softness in the bond division presumably has reflected passage in the House of Representatives of the bill which orders the Federal Reserve to restore approximately 1926 commodity price levels.

This bill's passage, which still faces the Senate, had an immediate effect not only in the government security market, but also in depreciating the dollar in foreign exchanges.

Latest advices from Washington, however, predicted its defeat when it reaches the Senate and, even if it is adopted by the Senate, the President is expected to veto it.

Actually, the bill attempts by legislation to force the reserve to accomplish that which it is seeking to do without congressional order restoration of higher commodity prices.

The reserve is actively purchasing government bonds in this attempt. Apparently, the $100,000,000 weekly purchases fail to satisfy the more impatient congressmen. One of them said today that $600,000,000 purchases a week would be necessary to "force the banks to loosen up on credit.

It is to be remembered that the member banks of the Federal Reserve system will shortly be entirely out of debt to the reserve. Then will develop an acute problem of how to keep their resources employed.

—SPECTATOR— Says:

The stock market tape continues to show liquidation and reports merely confirmed this, that forced selling was coming from banks cleaning out loans and from insurance and other sources.

Biding Time

Buyers meanwhile are biding their time until the pressure is over, and, while many stocks are decidedly in a buying zone, the advice of caution is to wait until a buying signal is given.

Chart readers profess to find signs of better resistance in Atchison and Union Pacific.

Forced selling is again apparent in the merchandising and store stocks, with a good deal touched off by previous declines in these issues . . . It was this which is understood to have brought the weakness in Lehman Corporation. This trust has had large holdings of merchandising stocks.

Royal Dutch

It may be that the bears have found a wildcat in Royal Dutch, which bucked the downtrend unexpectedly.

Reports are that there is a large professional short interest in the stock, some estimates running to 40,000 shares. Europe has been buying Royal Dutch in the last few days, with Paris taking a lot of it.

The international conference here next week should give a fillip to the oil shares generally, though the sad experience of past stabilization measures, like sugar and wheat, has made Wall Street extremely skeptical.

Hudson Motor Has Retail Sales Upturn

Detroit, May 4—Hudson Motor Car Co. reports a sharp upturn in retail sales. The week ended April 30 reached the high for the year and was the best week since early last July.

Last week's sales were 15 per cent higher than the week previous, topping a series of successive increases which started the third week of March.

STOCKS LOWER IN BOSTON

Share prices were at new low levels in today's dull dealings on the Boston Stock Exchange. Losses ranged from fractions to around 3 points. Edison Electric was a feature dropping over 6 points in early trading to sell at its lowest level in several years. The issue then rallied 4 points.

American Telephone was at a new bottom on a drop of over a point while New England Telephone moved against the general trend and recorded a fractional gain. General Electric was down almost a point to a new low.

Rail shares were at new lows with Atchison, New Haven and Pennsylvania touching fresh minimums. Swift & Co. and Swift International each sold at new lows on recessions of around 2 points.

American Woolen preferred dropped nearly 2 points and Gillette was off over a point. New 1932 lows were shown for Nash Motors, United Founders and United Fruit.

Analysis Hints at Possible Buyers

Wide conjecture as to the real buyers of securities during the long period of liquidation may be cleared up to some extent by a [illegible] the [illegible] of trading [illegible] the public. A survey of 30 such records for 1931 prepared by a brokerage firm shows that the number of private stockholders increased in each case studied, the percentages varying from 3.8 per cent to 33.4 per cent.

The compilation further reveals that investment trusts of the management type reduced their holdings in the shares of 19 of the 30 concerns reviewed in amounts ranging from 2.9 per cent to 73 per cent, while holdings were increased in the remaining 11 cases from 4.5 per cent to 96.5 per cent.

MARKET VIEWS OF BROKERS

Theodore Prince & Co.—We believe that there are many preferred issues selling at very attractive prices which well prove profitable purchases once definite signs of stabilization appear.

Whitney & Snell—If we are successful in having a lull in disturbing influences, an intelligent interest in the future may replace the present apathy.

Hornblower & Weeks—With the course of the market still trending downward and nothing to indicate that the current selling wave has been completed, we will have to wait the development of news of a favorable character and of a sufficient importance to bring about a change for the better in sentiment.

Josephthal & Co.—Until the character of the news changes, the market will probably continue to be subject to dribbling liquidation and investment and speculative buying will be discouraged.

Russell, Miller & Co.—While there is no immediate sign of a turn both the length and extent of the present decline strongly suggest the approach of a climax condition.

NEW LOWS SET IN WALL ST. DEALINGS

New York, May 4—New lows were set in trading on the New York Stock Exchange today.

It was again the turn of the Erstwhile Blue Chips, which resisted the recent decline, to lead the way. U. S. Steel common and preferred were the first to penetrate their old lows, followed by American Telephone.

OILS ARE RESISTANT

Then came American Can, General Electric, Consolidated Gas, Du Pont and Allied Chemical, with General Motors equalling its old low.

Other representative issues broke to new bottom, including Case, Liggett & Myers, American Tobacco B, Coca Cola, Sears Roebuck, N. Y. Central, New Haven, Western Union, Paramount and Atchison.

Oils were the only group to resist the selling, aided by firmness in Standard of New Jersey and Royal Dutch. Another supporting factor was the international petroleum conference [illegible] next week.

There was no new development to explain the [illegible] than [illegible] the decline in prices in recent weeks.

STEEL INDUSTRY GAINS

Weakness in the steel stocks came in the face of a slight increase in the industry's operations this week, as reported by trade reviews.

Further unsettlement of United States government issues today added to bond market difficulties and the majority of corporate loans followed an irregularly lower trend.

Wall Street found little solace in late Washington developments except for the Senate finance committee's modification of the stock transfer tax [illegible] a share against the House proposal of a tax of one [illegible] per cent.

Most market commentators hailed the Goldsborough bill as a disturbing influence on sentiment abroad, despite the strong [illegible] from its sponsors that the bill has unbridled inflationary motives.

Salvaging of only $38,000,000 of the original $206,000,000 saving contemplated in the House economy bill drew an unfavorable reaction, largely because Wall Street's inference that the House leadership had again been beaten.

Radio Corp. Covers "A" Stock Dividend

Net income of Radio Corporation of America for the quarter ended March 31, 1932, was $503,223 after depreciation, amortization, taxes, etc., as against $1,568,519 in the first quarter of 1931.

Gross income amounted to $[illegible]322,105 from [illegible] and other income [illegible] Preferred A dividend requirements were $[illegible].

At the annual meeting at which officers and directors were re-elected, David Sarnoff, president, stated:

"While the amount of the profit is modest, it is in excess of requirements for the A preferred dividend declared by directors for the first quarter of 1932. During the final quarter of 1931 we were in the red, whhilheh during theh first quarter of 1932 we are in the black."

Cotton Lower in New York Market

New York, May 4 (INS)—Cotton futures displayed a weak tone today as buying was checked somewhat by the publication of the government weekly report describing crop progress as favorable. Final prices were off 12 to 13 points with May off 2 at 5.63, October off [illegible], December off 13 at 6.01, January off 12 at 6.11 and March off 12 at 6.26.

Bullock Fund Pays 20 Cents a Share

First quarterly report of Bullock Fund, Ltd., sent to shareholders with the initial dividend of 20 cents per share, shows several portfolio changes. On April 20 1932, the funds were invested as follows: 49.68 per cent common stocks, 10.92 per cent preferred stocks, 13.50 per cent cash, as against 67.85 per cent common stocks, 13.76 preferred stocks and 18.39 per cent bonds on January 27 of this year. In making payment of 20 per cent per share the company reported that actual income received amounted to $0.234 per share.

Grains Are Higher in Chicago Market

Chicago, May 4—Upturns in Chicago grain prices today resulted from relative strength shown by the Liverpool wheat market. Absence of selling pressure here was conspicuous.

Opening unchanged to ¼ higher, Chicago wheat futures soon rose all around. Corn started at a shade decline to ¼ advance and later held near the initial figures.

Cotton Fabrics to Prevent Summer Colds Visioned

New York, May 4 (AP)—New kinds of cotton fabrics to prevent summer colds were visioned as possibilities in a report today to the U. S. Institute for Textile Research.

The report was made by Maurice Holland, director of the division of engineering and industrial research of the National Research Council. Its occasion was a luncheon in honor of Francis P. Garvan, president of the institute and president of the Chemical Foundation, Inc.

"The textile industry in America, as I see it, is a 1932 model car running around on a gay '90 chassis," Mr. Holland wrote.

"Perhaps around the corner in some scientific ice-box there is a process similar to that used in synthetic plastic components which will convert the cotton fibers directly into fabrics that will be superior to those now turned out.

"There are a dozen types of new textile fabrics which could be made of cotton to better serve a dozen new uses of man.

"A few illustrations of new fabrics which occur to me at once are cotton fabrics which afford more uniform temperature regulation for the human body, a health measure; fabrics which absorb perspiration and prevent summer colds, others which afford some measure of insulation against cold winds.

"Still other fabrics which offer softer texture next to the skin and those which take advantage of cotton's natural advantages as style factors. In the industrial field there is need for metallized and waterproof fabrics—at a price—while waterproof fabrics are a myth in America."

One Person in 49 Is Holder in Our Leading Industries

New York May 4—Equivalent of one out of every 49 persons in the United States was a holder of stock in one or more of 26 leading industries at the end of 1931, according to a survey just finished by Administration and Research Corporation, New York. This figure compares with one out of every 57 in 1930.

The research shows a total of 2,497,501 stockholders in the 26 companies in 1931 as against 2,209,193 in 1930.

Second Steel Wage Cut Seen

New York, May 4 (AP)—A second downward readjustment of wages by the United States Steel Corporation is being widely discussed in the steel trade as an early probability.

Officials of the corporation have declined to comment publicly on the matter but sources usually well-informed say the matter has been thoroughly surveyed by U. S. Steel executives in recent weeks.

Purity Bakeries Corp. declared a quarterly dividend of 25 cents on the common, placing it on a $1 annual basis, against $2 previously, payable June 1 to stock of record May 16.

Munsingwear, Inc., declared a quarterly dividend of 25 cents on the common, payable June 1 to stock of record May 16. In the previous quarter a dividend of 35 cents was paid, prior to which the stock was on a $2 annual basis.

Closing Is Steady in London Market

London, May 4 (AP)—Trading today was fairly cheerful on the stock exchange and further gains were registered in mining, gilt-edged and oil shares, while Argentine rails hardened on satisfactory traffic reports. Tin shares benefited by the restriction scheme. The close was steady.

HOWARD HUGHES TO FIGHT FOR RELEASE OF 'SCARFACE'

Girl About Town

—By ALYCE SIEMENS—

Sawdust and Spangles

Monday, 8:00 p. m. . . . Backstage at the Boston Garden . . . The circus kings and queens are lining up for their first entrances . . . It's all very calm, peaceful and systematically conducted . . . Tom Killilea, publicity director, who so resembles Lynn's Al Lashway, introduces us to a splendid looking gentleman, attired in correct evening dress, standing mouse-like by, seemingly enjoying a "good cigar"—in fact smoking it down to the very tippy point . . . It's a real joy to meet this most unusual personality, John Ringling . . . Unassuming in his chatting . . . Friendly greeting for every performer who passes him . . . Easy to understand why he has his two hobbies, of circuses and priceless art collections, when he tells us simply, "There's beauty and artistry always to be found right here under the Big Top" . . . And so we agreed, as we kept both eyes and ears open throughout the evening . . . Guided patiently about by Mr. Killilea, we put our keyhole snooping aside and actually met and chatted with most of the headliners . . . And here's what we discovered.

Aerial Dainty

Tamara, dainty Russian blonde, positively fascinated us so with her charming naive self, we almost forgot to chat . . . In this country one month yesterday . . . Has been performing since she was eight, in her papa's tiny traveling circus in Russia . . . Is 59 inches tall . . . Thinks "everything goes too fast over here," including money along Broadway! . . . Loathes the siren on ambulances and police cars . . . Detests whistling from her audiences here—doesn't realize here, at a circus, it means enthusiasm for her act because in Europe its meaning is just the opposite . . . Speaks 5 languages fluently . . . Just to make her happy, contented in this new-to-Tamara-county, Alfredo Codona, world's most adept and graceful aerialist, voluntarily assists Tiny Tamara in her act . . . He's the prize ribber (even Fitzbiggon is eclipsed) and thoroughly delights in ribbing poor, little Tamara . . . She gets even by crumbling her resin in her hands and dropping it in Alfredo's hair, as he stands beneath her in the center ring! . . . Delightful kids together.

Boston Girls

Blonde Mary Lennett, who's the only side-saddled rider in the menage (pronounced like "manage" by the circus folks), is a former Hub girl, now educating a fine son in college . . . Peggy Murray, menage artist and cowgirl in the Wild West show later, is formerly from Dorchester . . . Just up and joined the 101 Ranch show one afternoon . . . Living at home with her mother, Mrs. Tina Chapton, Dorchester, this week and indulging in home-cooking, 'specially fried chicken . . . Loves the life so much so that three years ago, after a bad accident in Brockton when she was being driven to Boston (from the hospital), she made the driver take her the opposite direction towards the circus!

"57 Inches"!

That's what some of them call tiny Ann Pickel, of Tampa, Florida, because she's just that . . . Another miss, not of the circus born . . . Father a horseman, used to hold her on horses at age of five months . . . Later, working in a bank, spent spare hours at a riding academy . . . Charter member of Tampa Horse Show . . . Rode and was seen by a Ringling scout . . . Offered a job . . . Didn't think much of it until she'd visited the "lot" . . . Decided then and there that circus folk lived not unlike she was living, while working indoors in a stuffy bank . . .

We Looked Up

When we had a swell chat with Giant Jack Earle of El Paso, Texas, since he's only 8 feet 6 inches tall . . . Weighs 358 pounds, wears size 22 shoes . . . Was in the movies after he left school . . . Will never get his fill of French fried potatoes . . . Within the past year, mostly to rest his mind from answering foolish questions of the Curious Ones, he's taken up clay modeling and sculptoring . . . Uses animals and circus characters for his models . . . Just finished doing Cliko, the funny little wild African bushman . . . Who posed for Jack as long as the biggest, blackest cigars held out!

Tanbarkings

Merle Evans, bandmaster, conducts his men through 123 music cues each performance . . . Mitzi, Rosie and Bertie, stunners in the Rieffenach family troupe, are all married to boys in the show . . . This is the first United States touring to be done by the two tallest women, the Van Droyson sisters, here from Germany and plenty big and tall, with genial smiles thrown in! . . . That was a 23-foot python they used for "atmosphere" for Bombayo's Man from India act . . . Hugh Zacchini, who tops off the show with his shooting through that huge $30,000 silver canon he and his brother invented, was a lieutenant in the Italian army, during the last war and speaks only 11 languages—with us still laboring over one! . . . Midgetman Harry Earles, and his cutie sis, Daisy, who were the wee leads in the talkie, "Freaks," were such fun to chat with . . . We might add, adorable . . . And of the film's making, Harry thinks there were several scenes they never should have put in because they were so far away from actual living of these interesting circus people . . . And he simply wouldnt rave or enthuse over Olga Baclanova, blonde screen star who "vamped" him . . .

Paul Muni in New Film

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS
Universal Service Motion Picture Editor
(Copyright, 1932, Universal Service, Inc.)

Los Angeles, May 4—Unrelenting in his fight with the New York censor board, Howard Hughes tells me he is going to battle to a finish for the release of "Scarface."

"It did a grand business in Los Angeles," he told me, "and I didn't hear people criticize it, did you? We didn't show gangsters in any glorified light."

Louella O. Parsons

All of this brings back the performance of Paul Muni in "Scarface." Winifred Sheehan brought Mr. Muni out here two years ago and I looked at marvelous tests and prophesied a future for him. Fox apparently didn't give him the right stories and he went back to New York.

Now he is coming out again and watch what he will do. He has been signed to play the lead in "Lawyer Man" for First National. The story is by Mark S. Potkin.

Jackie Is Lonesome

My favorite boy friend, Jackie Cooper, writes to say that he is having a swell time on his vaudeville tour. "Chicago is a keen town," writes Jackie. "I went to a play where they tell you about the moon and I saw it in a picture, too." Jackie says he is working hard but he misses Hollywood and "Please," he says, "write me and tell me what is doing there." He spells "Hollywood" in two words with a capital H and a capital W. We miss him, too. If Jackie hasn't heard, I can tell him he is due to make a circus story with Wallace Beery. The name is "O'Shaughnessey's 96" and Sam Wood will direct it. Wally sent him a message over the radio at the "Grand Hotel" opening.

One more picture for Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer and then Jack Gilbert is free. He has been hanging on to his contract and waiting until the last moment, although many of his friends feel he will be happier when the contract is ended. It is one of those ironclad arrangements that has become a sort of a Frankenstein. I believe Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer and John Gilbert will get together once this contract is ended. Jack expects to direct pictures. He confided to some of his close friends that that is his ambition. Long before he was a screen actor he was a director for Universal, and a very good one.

Norma Can Be Boss

An ambitious producer with the film rights to "For Hire" in his possession, called on Norma Talmadge when she was in New York and asked her to play the lead. He told Norma she could select her director, okay her story, pass on her cast and be, in short, the boss supreme. It looked promising to her. Then she read the story. It would have to be changed, but even that might be arranged. However, Norma sailed for Europe without committing herself. If, after due deliberation, the man who owns the story changes it sufficiently and the other details of the contract offered her are carried out she may make a picture, but not until she has had a vacation abroad.

Chatter in Hollywood

Germany has been watching the Dietrich-Von Sternberg-Schulberg discussion with interest. It wouldn't hurt the feelings of UFA if Marlene didn't make any more pictures in America, because they'd like to have her back. She received a cable, I hear on excellent authority, asking her to return and assuring her of everything she wants in the way of story, cast and direction. I asked Marlene if she were going back to Germany with her husband. She said no, she hadn't made any such decision. But I shouldn't be surprised if, after she talks over the matter with Josef Von Sternberg, she did return to make a picture.

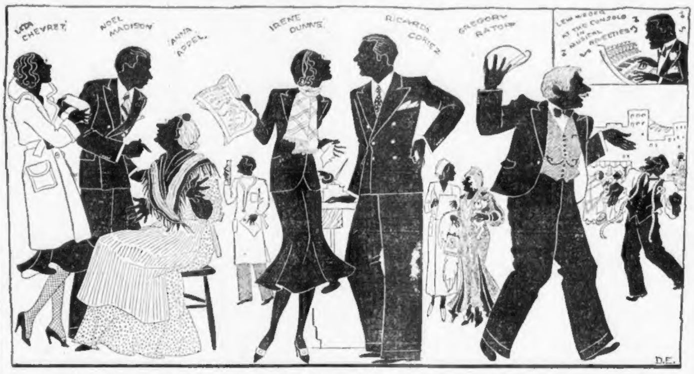
Snapshots of Hollywood

MAURICE CHEVALIER sunning himself on the beach with MARLENE DIETRICH and her husband. BARBARA BEBE LYON calling on MARIA SIEBER, MARLENE'S young daughter had the distinction of having CHEVALIER sing "One Hour With You" for her sole benefit. IRVING BERLIN, JR., accompanied by his father and mother, who are also well known, called on BARBARA. IRVING, JR., was so indifferent to her charms she retaliated by pulling his blond curls. MARION DAVIES, home again after a vacation in the country, held open house. GERTRUDE MICHAEL of the New York stage, a guest, had just had a test made for an important role. GARY COOPER, in a very English tweed suit, just back from South Africa, told us all about that fascinating country. RANDOLPH SCOTT, supposed to look like GARY, was also a guest at MARION'S. EILEEN PERCY still very tanned. CONSTANCE TALMADGE NETCHER in white pajamas trimmed in chinchilla. BEBE DANIELS, BEN LYON, FRANCES MARION, CHARLES LEDERER, HOWARD HUGHES and others, dined at MARION'S house. The MAXWELLS from England played tennis with TOWNSEND NETCHER. That's all today. See you tomorrow!

IT'S A STERLING SCREEN ENTERTAINMENT THEY GIVE



Ricardo Cortez turns in one of his best screen characterizations in "Symphony of Six Million," current film attraction at the RKO Keith's. Irene Dunne is also at her best in this film, while the work of Gregory Ratoff and Anna Appel wins high praise. Other leading characters in the film are Lila Chevret and Noel Madison.

Bing Crosby at Met Friday

Bing Crosby will be the big stage feature at the Metropolitan Friday. The following week the headliners will be Guy Lombardo and His Royal Canadians, and the week after will come Dorothy Mackaill in person to the Metropolitan.

Ranny Weeks, who has for the past 15 weeks delighted audiences, is to open on Friday his final week. He is to go to New York for screen tests and, if these are successful, it is probable that he will soon be seen in a Paramount picture. His engagement for a limited period at the New York Paramount is also expected to follow his closing at the Metropolitan.

Maybe I'm Wrong (About Hollywood)

—By JOHN P. MEDBURY—

Hollywood, Cal., May 4—Donald Dilliway showed up at the studio the other morning badly bruised and explained that he had been in an automobile accident. "How did it happen?" asked the director. "Well," replied Don, "I was going along Wilshire Boulevard, when a woman driver in the car ahead of me signalled that she was going to turn left—and then turned left."

Screen Career for Beauty

Another prospective screen star looms in Mae Wayne, pretty and talented, appearing this week at Loew's Orpheum, a native of Columbus, O. She recently made a screen test, which, according to critics, gives every indication that the lady is destined for a successful career in the talkies. With the close of her present vaudeville tour Miss Wayne will go to Hollywood where she will immediately take up her screen work.

"Waltz Time" Film at Liberty in Dorchester

The superb German screen operetta, "Two Hearts in Waltz Time," will have the first suburban Boston run at the Publix Liberty in Dorchester, today and tomorrow. Manager Joseph Goldberg secured this record-breaking production as a special for his house.

Cantor Coming Next Week

Cantor Josef Rosenblatt, world famous cantor, appears at two Boston suburban theaters, the Publix Morton, Dorchester, and the Shawmut, Roxbury, the first four days of next week, starting Sunday. He is one of the truly great singers of this generation. He has won the title of the "Jewish Caruso."

Cantor Rosenblatt refused an offer of $1000 a performance to appear with the Chicago Grand Opera Company and later from the Metropolitan Grand Opera for $3000 an appearance because of his principles, which will not permit a cantor to appear on the operatic stage in costume.

Real Actor Is Jackie Cooper

By HARRIS MORGAN

Harry Pollard, director of "When a Feller Needs a Friend," Cosmopolitan production co-starring Jackie Cooper and Chic Sale, which comes to Loew's State Friday, declares that Jackie is not only well-trained, but that he is an accomplished actor with an innate ability that most actors achieve only after years of experience.

"One of the fundamental reasons for Jackie's excellent performances," Director Pollard explains, "is his remarkable memory. He very rarely forgets a line of dialogue or the action he is supposed to go through in a scene.

Jackie's unusual memory would not be of much assistance unless he could emotionally interpret his roles, according to Pollard. He adds that the boy's part in the new film was the most difficult portrayals of his young career. As the crippled son of indulgent parents he was supposed to be suffering from a terrific inferiority complex whenever he tried to join other children at play.

"Jackie is subject to spells of restlessness like any normal youngster and is inclined occasionally to be playful when he feels more than his usual amount of pep," Pollard continues. "But after a rehearsal or so he usually settles down to work on a scene. If some particular 'prop' or toy being used in a set arouses his enthusiasm, he can be induced to put a little more into his portrayal on the promise that he will be allowed to play with the article after the scene is finished. There happened to be a small pony near one of the locations on which we worked. By agreeing to allow short rides between scenes we obtained some of the best action in the picture!"

ADVENTURES OF AN AUTOGRAPH HUNTER

There is romance, danger and excitement in the life of the Autograph Hunter. After weeks, and weeks, and weeks of negotiations, we have induced Zukor Herowitz (above) to strip the veil of mystery from his glamorous career and tell our readers how he annoys picture actors, explorers, dancers, politicians, and the crowned heads of Europe. This series will make you gasp at Zukor's courage, and cheer his unmitigated nerve. He will tell you how the great actresses of the moompitcher world are hungry for a few understanding words from the autograph pest—and how he wrings secrets from their souls. This series starts tomorrow. Run—don't walk—to the nearest busy street intersection and demand that the newsboy there sell you not one, but a dozen copies of tomorrow's paper.

THE VOICE OF BROADWAY

By LOUIS SOBOL

Snapshots at Random!

Only ten minutes ago in an automobile crash and looks how calm we are now . . . A miracle how the Sobols keep their poise under trying circumstances, yeh, yeh! . . . An amazing thing . . . That heartbeat broadcast at the National Broadcasting studios Saturday afternoon . . . One of the announcers, John Young, a handsome chap, sits in a chair with electrodes on each arm, held fast by bandages . . . A pretty girl, Catherine Field, settles down on his lap . . . He grabs her in both arms, kisses her feverishly and you hear what sounds like a cannonading . . . It almost shatters the glass in the studio . . . When Young releases the girl the pounding slows up slowly and becomes fainter until it sounds like a few stray rain drops beating against a window pane . . . Coming out of Reuben's early Sunday morning . . . the effervescent Gypsy Markoff, fiery little accordion player . . . "I want to go to Europe and there's lots of trouble . . . Maybe I can't come back, they say, if I go" . . . Inside, Billy Gaxton explaining to Harold Stern why he's convinced the Pulitzer prize will be to George S. Kaufman and George Gershwin . . . "That fellow Kaufman," he insists, "I've never seen any one like him. He doesn't storm at you in front of the rest of the cast when he's directing. You'll be walking out for a smoke, maybe, and all of a sudden you'll find him at your side and he'll whisper sort of nonchalantly, 'Say, Billy, I think maybe if you lifted your voice a little when you say "And that's the way she goes, fellas," and then stick out your arm, this way, see,' and then you find yourself doing what he's suggested, and let me tell you he's usually right" . . . Early Saturday night on Fifth ave. near 55th st. . . . A slim, smiling gal . . . Fay Marbe at least 10 pounds lighter than when I last saw her a couple of weeks ago.

At City Hall Friday afternoon . . . An elderly, good-looking chap in an elaborate uniform with rivulets of gold braid streaming all over his coat, waits patiently with a coterie of diplomatic lads for Mayor Walker to receive him . . . It's 3 o'clock and Miss Wagner, the Mayor's secretary, explains apologetically that Jimmy is still up at the Board of Estimate meeting . . . She's worried . . . "He hasn't even had his breakfast yet" . . . The Mayor comes down . . . We introduce him to Paul Yawitz, the new columnistic menace, and Walker remarks dryly, 'There ought to be a law making the writing of a Broadway column a misdemeanor and the publication of one a felony," and then he pronounces the magic words—they're always magic—making Harry Sobol and Eileen Coyle man and wife while the Spanish Admiral waits silently and still patiently to be received . . . Monday night at the Ballyhoo . . . One of the intimate night clubs of the town with the genial clown, Jack White, as the loquacious master of ceremonies . . . Borrah Minnevitch, Eddie Elkins, the orchestra leader, and Barney Gallant enter . . . Minnevitch monopolizes the conversation with his description of the arrival of his new heiress, Lydia Ellen and the fact that she'll have 100 godfathers to say nothing of 38 Friars as sponsors . . . Gallant remarks drolly, "I dunno, Borrah, I understand she's a second-hand baby. She hasn't got any teeth" . . .

Tuesday night at the El Garron . . . The tall, stocky, somewhat stoutish lad dancing with a nice looking gal . . . Gene Tunney and Polly Lauder . . . Tunney protests at the cover charge on his check, explaining that he was leaving before the show was going on . . . The "Blue Pajamas" song warbled by the English lads, Clark and Deslys, with the snooty ladies and gents at the tables joining in for the chorus . . . Camilla Lanier drops in . . . "Have you seen Johnny Weissmuller, since he's come to town? Isn't he looking grand?" . . . Wednesday night, a dark-eyed gal runs out of the alleyway leading to the stage door of the Ziegfeld theater . . . She carries an armful of flowers and rushes madly into a cab . . . Lupe Velez . . . Saturday afternoon on Madison Ave, near 53rd st. . . . A fellow with a long white beard, smoking a short stubby pipe and wearing a green beret, driving a sports roadster! . . . Friday afternoon opposite the Municipal building . . . Father Cashin outside his church, chuckling over some yarn being unloaded by a stoutish cop . . . The portraits of the Presidents strung around the walls of the Tavern . . . Billy LaHiff, the proprietor, comes over . . . "I'd like to know now where'll be the next face to go up on that wall" . . . Monday night at the Booth theater . . . The gal on crutches hobbling into the lobby . . . Rose Franken, author of the play making its premiere that night—"Another Language" . . . It turns out to be a springtime hit . . . Kelcey Allen stops us . . .

Saturday night at the Pierette—A typical mingling of Broadway, Park ave., Wall st. and perhaps, even Washington Heights. Texas Guinan, her neck and arms agleam with jewels wisecracking with Roscoe (Fatty) Arbuckle—A more sedate Arbuckle than the corpulent clown of a decade ago . . . Guinan's mouth keeps moving up and down and sidewise, as she chatters incessantly while Mrs. S. Stanwood Menken, Irene Delroy, Dorothy Hall, John T. Ringling, Alma Clayburgh, Joanne Aubert, Jesse Livermore, Sam Harris, Catherine Dale Owen and others flutter about her—and how she loves it! . . . We spot Walter Chrysler, Jr., dancing with the vivacious Betty Shuster and Dr. William Beebe, the scientist—not dancing, but apparently deeply impressed by the ease with which the average New Yorker can shake off care and enjoy himself . . . Earlier that afternoon at the studio of Arthur Swanstrom . . . Bobby Connolly lolls around in an easy chair, his feet perched on a table and sighs . . . "Steamers sailing every day but I'm not on any of them" . . . A long stand palship this, between Swanstrom and Connolly—one of the many, genuine friendships on Broadway—and in spite of what you may have heard or read about the Dizzy Dell, there are plenty of these sincere friendships on Broadway . . . Pretty Paddy Hastings, one of the undraped lassies of the Hollywood restaurant revue.

Late Monday night on Broadway near 50th st. . . . Walter O'Keefe, robust Bill Plankinton, tiny Bobby Dolan and Colette Francis marching up the street, four abreast . . . "What's a good place to go, Louis?" demands O'Keefe . . . "Home," we advise . . . Early Wednesday morning, In Reuben's again . . . The pulchritudinous Helene Costello, back from Europe, seated with the curly-haired, quiet-mannered Phil Rosen . . . During the conversation, Helene remarks, "Pauline Garon's doing nicely over there in England" and it doesn't occur to us until later that Pauline was Lowell Sherman's first wife and that Helene is soon to be his ex-wife . . . Lew Gensler and Russell Patterson, the illustrator, who are often mistaken for each other, sit quietly at another table . . . Roszicka Dolly and her husband, Irving Netcher enter, followed a few seconds later by Veloz and Yolanda, the society dancers . . . Tuesday night, Lindy's for a second . . . the place is jammed and we observe to Lindy, "Funny, with everybody talking hard times, your place is jammed with heavy eaters. And the automat's only a few blocks away"—"You think the Automat's bad," exclaims Lindy. "They got grand coffee there—but look at the people you meet here." . . . On West 54th st. Thursday night . . . A sombre-looking chap walking briskly, his hands thrust deeply into his overcoat pockets . . . Bert Lahr . . . Later at the Folies Bergere, watching the eight tall beauties parade around in their flimsies, Arkie Schwartz chirps, "I'll bet, Louie, each of those girls has a story to tell that'd make a novel" . . . So we stop the tall lass who looks like Norma Shearer . . . "Anything exciting ever happen to you?" . . . "Oh, I dunno," she sighs, "All I know is I wish I could raise $70—my mother ain't feeling so good and I'd like to go home and see her. I haven't seen her in a year. But where will I get $70?" . . . Snapshots . . . The Album of Manhattan!

What the Hearst Papers Advocate No. 8 Five-billion-dollar Federal loan for public works and to relieve unemployment.

BOSTON, WEDNESDAY, MAY 4, 1932

Senate's 'Economies' Are Political Bunk

Senator Johnson, of California, Republican, and Senator Copeland of New York, Democrat, have performed a timely public service in protesting the 10 per cent reduction which the Senate is making in all departmental appropriation bills for the support of the Federal Government.

This hit or miss method, if adopted by the Congress and approved by the President, would add 100,000 federal employes to the army of the unemployed, cripple many of the most useful federal services, sap the morale of the federal service, and undermine public confidence the country over.

Reduction of federal expenditures should be made by eliminating waste and duplication and by suspending the least essential federal activities during the present emergency.

But intelligent reorganization and reduction of this sort requires conscientious study, a united resolve to protect the public welfare, and personal courage on the part of individual Senators and Representatives in Congress.

The 10 per cent method resorted to by the Senate is a lazy scheme of false economists and a selfish plan of pork barrel politicians.

At a time when 8,000,000 citizens are out of work and 5,000,000 more have long been reduced to part time work, both Houses of Congress should be striving to relieve national distress by reducing unemployment.

At a time when the American people are staggering under the burden of excessive and illogical taxation, both Houses of Congress should be striving to relieve the people of excess taxation and to provide better Federal Government at lower cost.

But the 10 per cent method to which the Senate has resorted meets none of these requirements and deserves the rebuke it has received at the hands of Senator Johnson and Senator Copeland.

Grafting on Misery

Starvation Wages on State Jobs

Laborers on the public highways are being paid a wage in some cases as low as sixteen cents an hour, according to complaints seriously made to the Massachusetts Building Trades Council.

Sixteen cents an hour is not a wage and should not be dignified as such; it is a miserable pittance.

What kind of a racket have we here?

The public works program of Massachusetts was adopted in this time of stress not so much to fatten contractors and not so much to allow their foremen to establish any padrone system for wringing fees out of the honest toil of the workers who bear the heat and struggle of the day.

The public works program was adopted to allow hardworking men to earn a decent, living wage through which they could support themselves and their families without resorting to public charity or the poorhouse.

These good men work hard enough for the small pay they get.

Every penny cheated away from them and their families is also cheated away from the over-burdened taxpayers, out of whose generosity this public works program was made possible.

What about the law in these cases?

The law, as we understand, provides that laborers on public works shall be paid the average, going wage which exists in the locality of the State highway construction.

The State Department of Public Works has ample funds, ample authority and an ample corps of inspectors to ascertain whether the law has been flaunted.

The people of Massachusetts expect that the law will be enforced.

They see enough scandalous rackets flourishing in public life without this instance of implanting petty graft upon human misery.

Our Sea Heritage

While Washington does its foolhardy best to reduce the United States navy, Massachusetts goes gloriously along training its young men for the sea.

The nautical training ship Nantucket will begin its annual cruise next week. Some 118 of our young students cadets will be taught seamanship, navigation and engineering. Their cruise will be 11,500 miles, ending about September 15.

They will be fitted to serve our country when and if their services are needed in emergency. They will be taught to command our maritime ships in the useful pursuits of trade and commerce in peace time. More than either, they will learn good discipline, which will make them reliable and patriotic citizens. Their minds and their bodies will be improved.

We have in New England a heritage of the sea we should never forget. Moreover, we can never attain commercial greatness until the products of our soil and our factories are transported over the seven seas in stout vessels that fly the American flag.

The Destiny of Harvard

"If I had to fix the destiny of the Harvard of 100 years from now, I would commit suicide tonight, because to fix that destiny would be to put shackles on the college."

Spoken like a true crusader, President Lowell.

The Harvard he loves, the Harvard he envisions for the future is a Harvard that will never stand still but a Harvard that will constantly engage in experimentation and accept changes for real improvement.

That is the essence of a true education. It is the thirst for knowledge; the thirst which is never satisfied.

The object of the college, as President Lowell describes it, is to give each student a working brain. It is to make him want to educate himself. All higher education is self-education.

Here and there is some ambitious boy or girl, deprived of the opportunity of a college education, who will be stimulated by the words of this great educator. "Higher education is self-education," and even that is possible to be acquired outside the four walls of a college. It is open to everyone.

New York Day by Day

Hobbies of Authors

NEW YORK, May 4—Every writer I know has an eager zest for some form of writing totally outside his metier. It is with these efforts they are the most meticulous. Such scribbling proves a diversion—a pleasant detour from the hum-drum of customary routine.

Rupert Hughes for 10 years devoted most of his time to the least profitable of his works—the life of George Washington in several volumes. He sacrificed many larruping offers to do the research work necessary for such voluminosity.

Meredith Nicholson loves to write essays. In England and Scandinavia he is regarded as our foremost essayist. He may spend weeks giving a diamond-point polish to some 1500-word composition beglamouring the lowly paw-paw. Booth Tarkington likes to write skits for collegiate dramas.

Arthur Somers Roche would rather hearken to the random clink of romantic verses than dash off a high-speed mystery yarn for his own price. His old sidekick, Don Clarke, who bats out racy sex tomes, dreams of writing an American history. John Held, Jr., is reputedly writing an opera libretto.

The world's most proflific writer, the late Edgar Wallace, did a secret chore under a pseudonym for practically nothing, yet it was the sole piece of writing to which he thrilled. It was a weekly half column of notionable conjectures in an English turf journal written in the idiom of the stables.

Charles Hanson Towne writes columns and books, but his true love is poetry. The talented Julian Street, a gourmand of distinction, spent many months preparing a guide book to Paris restaurants.

I am also not immune from such frivols. My pleasantest task is turning out a single page vignette for a ponderous English quarterly. The circulation is under 4000, and the pay, almost nothing. But its contributors mainly are academicians one likes casually to refer to as co-workers.

Another yarn about Marcus Loew's huge estate on Long Island. Four days after he discharged an English butler he came upon the servant while walking around the grounds. "I thought I discharged you," said Loew. "You did," was the reply, "but I can't find my way out."

Among shuddery exhibits in a fashionable East Side skin peel sanitarium are alcohol jars with corkscrew-like curls of skin from stage beauties. Such exhibits are to impress prospects. A skin peel is supposed to give a baby freshness lasting a year. In prosperous days the charge was $500, but depression price is $250.

Sixth ave. presented a barnyard effect after the theater the other evening. Bert Lahr's "fighting" bull rolled by in a perambulating stockade. A group of brightly blanketed Shetlands were in charge of a groom, and a vaudeville duck under the arm of its owner added another touch.

For years I have been passing those slots labeled "Night Depository" notched in the façade of midtown banks. They are for the convenience of all night merchants. Many times I have been tempted to inspect the mechanism, but somehow suspected a sudden whang on the head and a shoot down a trap chute. What, however, has impressed me is that I have never seen anyone making a deposit.

Men and Women

"DON'T YOU THINK women are smarter than men?" says she, with a mean look, "dasting" me to disagree.

I think they're both smart, lady—but in different ways.

One can't, of course, generalize about people. No one rule will fit them all. But this is what I think about the average run of human beings after playing around with several million of 'em for nearly 50 years. I believe that—

Elsie Robinson

Men are more intelligent than women — AND WEAKER.

Women are more stupid than men—BUT STRONGER.

Women do more with what they have.

Than a brainy man with his head bulging with knowledge.

Women have a million ways of being stubborn, most of which men never suspect.

Men have more imagination.

Men are more sensitive than women, particularly about abstract principles which have no connection with their personal lives.

Women are more self-centered than men; take everything more personally; get gladder or madder or sadder about things.

Men are more honest than women, and much more easily fooled.

Women lie more than men, and are more wily in dealing with other liars.

Men abuse women.

Women use men.

And THAT'S just the beginning of what I think about men and women.

Just Folks

Home-Makers

A shelter for the children and a place for them to play,
A red geranium or two to keep the corners gay;
A little patch of grass to trim, a pair of maple trees,

The youngsters racing in and out, as children have to do;
Their footprints on the carpet left where every caller sees,
The simple prayers they say at night, and home is made of these.

Long nights of anxious battling 'gainst the course of some disease,
Then times of song and laughter—every home is made of these.

Military Control Necessary in Hawaii

By Bainbridge Colby

THE trial of Lieutenant Massie and the tragic incidents which led up to it have riveted public attention upon administrative conditions in Hawaii.

That they are bad and call for correction is hardly capable of denial. They have been made the subject of an official investigation by a representative of the Department of Justice—Assistant Attorney-General Richardson. His report on conditions in the Hawaiian Islands, with particular reference to law enforcement, has just been filed with Congress and will soon appear as a Senate document.

BAINBRIDGE COLBY

"The conditions which we found to exist in the territory (of Hawaii) will, unless changed and remedied, quite certainly prevent effective law enforcement in the territory in the not distant future.

"We found THE POLICE ADMINISTRATION in Honolulu IMPOTENT, UNDISCIPLINED, NEGLECTFUL AND UNINTELLIGENT, WITH ITS CHIEF CONCERN POLITICAL ACTIVITY.

"To be effective, the head of the police department should be removed from politics. The racial characteristics of the population, as well as the great political activity, require it.

"In Honolulu we found AN INEXPERIENCED, INEFFICIENT COUNTY ATTORNEY, IMMERSED IN POLITICS, his deputies appointed largely for political purposes, with insufficient funds at his disposal to provide suitable deputies.

"The prison system was VERY INEFFICIENT. The high sheriff was a man entirely without experience or disciplinary ability. The prisoners were improperly guarded and the entire administration of prison affairs was EXTRAORDINARILY LAX.

"The parole system we found to be EXCEEDINGLY LAX. Only a single parole officer was provided, and his duties were largely 'playing politics.'

"We have some apprehension as to THE EFFECT UPON RACIAL ANTAGONISMS IN THE TERRITORY, due to the violent partisanship existing in the islands with respect to the pending rape and murder cases. WHAT THAT SITUATION MAY EVENTUALLY BE NO MAN MAY AT THIS TIME INTELLIGENTLY FORESEE."

THESE serious findings take on added gravity when one considers the racial diversity of Hawaii's population. According to a recent estimate, the population of the islands is 333,000. Of this total, the pure Hawaiian, the Caucasian-Hawaiian and the Asiatic-Hawaiian amount to approximately 45,000. There are 35,000 Americans and northern Europeans. The Portuguese number 28,000, the Filipinos 52,000, the Koreans 6000, the Chinese 25,000 and the Japanese 132,000.

Under the Federal law, the Oriental immigrants already in the islands cannot be naturalized, because they belong to races excluded by the laws of the United States. The Latin immigrants usually cannot qualify for citizenship because of illiteracy.

The battle against incompetence and corruption is a stern one at home under the watchful eye of our own people, with an experience reaching back for centuries in the practice of self-government and democratic institutions.

With a conglomerate population such as exists in the Hawaiian Islands, remote from the pulses of our civic life, unwatched, unhelped and without the support of a trained public opinion, an alert press and experienced courts, it is unreasonable to expect anything but an enfeebled civil authority and such conditions as the report of the Assistant Attorney-General discloses.

Hawaii is really an outpost of the United States. It is primarily a naval station. Its industries, which center around the production of sugar, fruit, coffee and live stock, should be encouraged. They are now richly productive and should be maintained and developed, but they do not constitute the justification for, nor the significance of, our possession of the islands—situated almost in the center of the north Pacific Ocean, and almost equidistant from the American and Asiatic shores.

THE rational method for the government of Hawaii is to turn its administration over to military control.

It is the tradition and training of the navy, as well as of the army, to be COMPETENT, HONEST AND PATRIOTIC. The aim of both services, when entrusted with the administration of our possessions or outlying territories, has always been honesty and efficiency. They have succeeded when political governors and popular assemblies have failed.

Congress should exercise promptly its inherent power "to make all needful rules and regulations respecting the territories of the United States." Exclusive and unlimited power of legislation is given to Congress by the Constitution and sanctioned by judicial decisions.

Conditions demand such action. It should not be delayed. There is nothing in the organic act by which Hawaii became a territory of the United States which presents any obstacle. It is subject to alteration, amendment or repeal.

G. O. P. and Rule-or-Ruin

The Republican convention at Faneuil Hall, which demanded repeal of prohibition by an overwhelming majority, was representative of the most formidable Republican organizations in Massachusetts.

Apart from the official State convention of elected delegates, there has not been within our memory any assembly of Republicans so well adapted to speak the purpose of that party.

Regardless of what Mr. Hoover may do as a candidate for re-election and regardless of whatever attitude may be adopted by the Republican party in the Southern and Western States, these men and women of Massachusetts have recognized that prohibition is a terrible blight upon temperance and that it has bred an orgy of crime and corruption which even a strong country like America cannot forever withstand.

For their patriotic and courageous stand, they may have to pay heavily in political defeats here the next few years. The dry faction of the Republican party is a rule-or-ruin faction which can be counted upon to do its utmost to defeat any Republican candidates here who refuse to accept prohibition, with all its manifold evils.

But in the long run they will find themselves rewarded for their courageous determination. The public have a fine regard for courageous statesmanship.
